

Special Topic Classes Fall 2008

The following classes are Special Topic Classes. It is important to realize before registering for these classes that often these classes are not offered again as the same topic.

PSC 403Z-001 SP TOP: Environmental Policy

PSC 405Z-001 SP TOP: International Security

PSC 403Z-001 SP TOP: Environmental Policy-Pirages

An overview of domestic and global environmental issues and policies. Includes an assessment of current environmental issues and regulations, an overview of emerging global environmental issues such as global warming, and an assessment of the challenges associated with moving toward more sustainable societies.

PSC 405Z-001 SP TOP: International Security-Howard

This course will examine the causes, effects, and array of strategies for addressing problems related to conflict in world politics. Students will consider topics such as the nature and origins of war, threats to international security, and the causes and consequences of a variety of contemporary and historical international conflicts. Current world events relating to these themes will also be discussed.