Lee Business School
BSBA Degree, business pre-major 2014-2015

Welcome to UNLV's Lee Business School. The business program includes five categories of course work:

1. University core requirements, also called general education
2. Business pre-major courses, which are the business preparation courses
3. Upper-division, 300- and 400-level, business courses serve as the building blocks of a business education
4. Major courses (the professional courses)
5. General electives

- Begin math and English courses early. These courses are prerequisites for the pre-major courses. They also require placement via exam or preparatory courses. (See below for more information.)
- Select pre-major courses. These are a priority and are required for admission to the major.
- Select general-education core courses. When possible, select courses that fulfill both general-education core and the multicultural/international requirements.
- International business majors should begin the language requirement during the first semester.

Sample Academic Plan -- Listed below is one possible schedule for your first four semesters.
