To Whom It May Concern:

The Nevada Institute for Children's Research & Policy would like to announce a new temporary full-time position available for summer 2015. We will be interviewing interested applicants as soon as possible and would like to hire someone immediately. We would really appreciate it if the Grad College would help in distributing the information. Please see the information below. Thanks so much!

Position Announcement

Position: Research Assistant

Agency: Nevada Institute for Children’s Research and Policy
School of Community Health Sciences, UNLV

Schedule: Temporary - Full- Time

Description:
NICRP is looking to hire a research assistant to conduct and coordinate research activities for several research projects related to children in Nevada. Qualified applicants should have a bachelor’s degree, and strong analytical and writing skills. Applicants should have the ability to work collaboratively with project partners to address existing project requirements, and knowledge of database development and data analysis. Ideally applicants will have a background in social science and/or evaluation research, be proficient in working with Excel, Word, and have some experience with SPSS and/or SAS software.

This position would be a temporary position (June-August 2015) and we would need 40 hours a week between the hours of 8 AM and 5 PM, Monday -Friday.

Contact Information:
If interested or if you have questions please send your cover letter, resume and writing sample to:

Amanda Haboush-Deloye, PhD
Chief Research Associate
Nevada Institute for Children’s Research and Policy
Email: amanda.haboush@unlv.edu
Phone: 702-895-1040