Ellsworth Kelly (1923 - 2015) was a master of color and form. The Barrick’s current exhibition of his lithographs features brilliant colored geometry. The shapes fill the page with delicate curves, crisp lines, and particular angles that push against the edges of the page to create abstractions.

Create your own compositions with the tools and colored paper provided.

About Visitor-Made:
Held the third Thursday of every month, from 4 – 7 pm. Look around the galleries. Think about materials, line, color, and shape – then participate in either a group or individual art-making project.

Ellsworth Kelly is on view through May 14, 2016.
