Majoring in biological sciences with a concentration in integrative physiology provides students with intellectual and technical tools essential in a broad array of life science careers, including application to all the healthcare related professional schools or graduate school. This degree provides examination of how animals and/or plants work from a molecular/cellular level or organization to systems level of understanding and up to the integration of physiology with behavior and evolutionary processes.

Students concentrating in integrative physiology should also be able to explain how cells and organisms acquire and process nutrients, transform energy, and maintain homeostasis in a variable environment to survive and reproduce.
