

MS and PhD in Computer Science Program Handbook

Welcome

Message from Chair

Welcome to the UNLV Department of Computer Science (CS) graduate program at the Howard R. Hughes College of Engineering. We are pleased to recognize the research and scholarly efforts of the graduate faculty and students. Our graduate program offers MS and PhD degrees, and is designed to pursue research at the frontiers of computer science and applications areas. In addition to the traditional thesis option, the MS program offers project and course only options as well. The department also offers an interdisciplinary MS in Cyber Security in cooperation with the Lee College of Business and housed in the Graduate College. The UNLV CS Graduate program offers a unique academic experience because we focus on students pursuing advanced degrees and an education that will expand their knowledge base and propel their career. By combining rigorous academics with real-world application, our students are better prepared to apply their education to real-world problems. The graduate program is supported by faculty who are actively participating in research and development in specialized areas such as Machine Learning and Artificial Intelligence, Programming Languages and Systems, Cyber Security, and Algorithms and Foundation. The department also offers an interdisciplinary MS in Data Analytics for students with BS/BA degrees in disciplines other than computer science.

The research is supported by computer equipment including Hadoop Cluster, High Performance Computing, GPUs, and Linux based personal workstations.

Mission Statement(s)

Our mission is to assure overall quality of the CS graduate education and promote culturally and intellectually diverse learning environments in which scholarship and creativity can flourish. In realizing this mission, the Graduate Program acts to recruit, support, retain, and matriculate scholars, researchers, and practitioners educationally empowered with critical skills to become agents of innovation, opportunity, and change.

Advisory Committee Guidelines

The Computer Science follows the guideline of the Graduate College. The role of the advisory committee is described in the Graduate Student Handbook

Degree Program Benchmarks

This is described in the Graduate Catalog for the Master of Science in Computer Science and Doctor of Philosophy - Computer Science

Program Timeline

The general guideline is listed in the graduate catalog under the Graduate Study Timeline section. In Computer Science, it is expected to take two years for the Master degree and four to six years for the Ph.D. degree.

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines

UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog.

Annual Mandatory Individual Development Plan

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form [Formerly known as the Student Annual Review]. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead.

Faculty Advisors/Graduate Coordinators have the option to provide feedback to each students' submitted IDP and provide acknowledgement that they have reviewed the IDP.

Reported student data is shared with students' graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students' strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner.

Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track UNLV metrics related to the annual productivity of all students.

Probation

If a student fails to successfully progress in their degree program, their department/school will recommend that the student be placed on probation by the Graduate College. Students on probation may be dismissed/separated from their program for failing to successfully meet the conditions of their probation by the deadline provided. Please see the Probation and Separation section of the Graduate Catalog for more information.

Additional Program Information

The Computer Science department offers research opportunities in the following areas:

1. Design and analysis of algorithms
2. Operating and distributed systems

Discipline Resources

Computer Science professional organizations include Association for Computing Machinery (ACM, <http://www.acm.org>) and Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) Computer Society (<http://www.computer.org>). Student memberships are available for graduate students at a low cost. Both organizations offer a large collection of research articles through their digital library (<http://ieeexplore.ieee.org> and <http://dl.acm.org>) that is accessible from any computer on campus or from off campus through UNLV library services. For publication writing style, both ACM and IEEE provide a paper template on their web site. UNLV Computer Science department is an institutional member of Computing Research Association (CRA). Its web site (<http://www.cra.org>) offers valuable resources for Computer Science researchers including the current research issues, enrollment information in Computer Science, employment data and salary information for Computer Science graduates. There are hundreds of conferences and journals in Computer Science. Their ranking information is available in a few dozen web sites and can be easily found through web search. For conference attendance, partial travel support is available from UNLV Graduate and Professional Student Association (<http://www.unlv.edu/gpsa/sponsorship-awards/sponsorships>).
