About UNLV

In its 50-year history, UNLV has undergone an amazing transformation from a small branch college into a thriving urban research institution of 28,000 students and 3,300 faculty and staff. Along the way, the urban land-grant university has become a dynamic resource for one of the country's fastest-growing and most enterprising cities. UNLV's 350-acre main campus, located on the Southern tip of Nevada in a desert valley surrounded by mountains, is home to more than 220 undergraduate, master's, and doctoral degree programs, all accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities.

About the School of Public Policy and Leadership

History

In September 2009, the UNLV Regents created the new School of Environmental and Public Affairs, combining the energies of two former units, the departments of Environmental Studies and Public Administration. The new School provides an umbrella for exciting, interdisciplinary research and teaching in public administration and governance, environmental science and studies, nonprofit management, urban studies, and natural resources management. Our faculty’s strong record and interest in these areas offer students and practitioners a variety of possibilities in cutting-edge and relevant knowledge, research, and projects. In 2016, the name of the school was changed to School of Public Policy and Leadership.

Mission

The School of Public Policy and Leadership employs an interdisciplinary approach to create knowledge and understanding to support effective policy and governance through collaborations of faculty, students, and the greater community.

Vision

At the School of Public Policy and Leadership, our vision is a community that continuously engages important decision-making processes in order to facilitate effective, long-term, problem-solving capacity for society in the areas of public administration, environmental science and management, and other policy arenas. This will require new levels of cooperation among citizens and experts across the public, non-profit, civic, and private sectors.

Values

At the School of Public Policy and Leadership, we cherish the following values:

- Using our expertise to serve others;
- Dedication to excellence in teaching and research;
- Scientific rigor and academic integrity;
- Collaborative teamwork;
- Inclusiveness and diversity; and,
- Compassion, respect, and dignified regard for people in society.
Goals
Our school has three main goals:

- Deliver value as teachers who educate and empower future leaders;
- Advance knowledge, using our expertise in meaningful ways that allow communities to better understand, manage, and resolve complex public and environmental issues; and,
- Serve those in society and government faced with challenging decisions and educational needs specific to our areas of expertise.

All of this is done with an emphasis on insight, excellence, and leadership for the present and future.

Join us as we address the urgent needs of our nation and community. Explore our several undergraduate and graduate degree and certificate options in Environmental Science, Public Administration, Public Affairs, Urban Leadership and Emergency Management.

About the Masters of Arts in Urban Leadership
The mission of the UNLV Master of Arts in Urban Leadership program is to provide high quality education to prepare mid-level professionals from Nevada and around the nation to:

1. Shape and communicate their vision for urban change
2. Create innovative solutions to pressing urban issues
3. Collaborate with stakeholders and,
4. Implement strategic plans, programs, and policies

Program Requirements
Although we do not have a required number of years of prior experience for admission, our expectation is that students will have a background in community engagement, broadly construed. All candidates must have, at a minimum, a bachelor’s degree to be considered.

This program is unique in its recognition that urban leaders come from a variety of professional backgrounds. Leaders can be elected officials, public administrators, non-profit leaders, and leaders in private organizations. Thus, a defining feature of our program is that students will have an opportunity to engage with leaders from a host of community settings. To further enhance this professional engagement, our student's experience will be highlighted by a series of panels and workshops that will allow participants to engage with some of the foremost urban leaders and policy analysts in the country.

Annual Mandatory Individual Development Plan and Procedures

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead. Reported student data is shared with students’ graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students’ strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner. Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track metrics related to the annual productivity of all students.
