The QTPOC Cultural Resource Guide

Student Diversity & Social Justice
Mission

Student Diversity & Social Justice advocates with a diverse student population to amplify and affirm student's identities through an intersectional framework to promote student success. We are a student-centered office committed to educating, empowering, and developing UNLV students as leaders to recognize and address societal injustices.

Vision

Student Diversity & Social Justice (SDSJ) will provide transformative experiences to create a campus free of oppression and trauma through intentional engagement.

Values

Student-centered intentionally highlighting, addressing, and including the distinct needs, interests, aspirations, or cultural backgrounds of individual and groups of students in order to address/increase retention, persistence, and completion rates

Empowerment/ #fun
Engaging fully with freedom to exist unapologetically by creating transformational opportunities to encourage self-determination and inspire change.

Trauma Informed
Trauma-informed is the act of creating a space designed to acknowledge and develop an understanding of one's experience, the dynamics of trauma, and how those dynamics impact one's experience.

Intersectionality
Coined by Black Feminist legal scholar Kimberlé Crenshaw, Intersectionality is a theoretical framework and practice meant to articulate how multiple forms of oppression, domination, and discrimination interact to create a unique form of discrimination for people with multiple marginalized identities.

Community
An environment that denotes a feeling of belonging and constructs a network of individuals that help support the successful navigation of oppressive systems.

Advocacy
A process of supporting and enabling underrepresented people to 1) express their views, 2) access information and services, and 3) defend and promote their rights.

Land Acknowledgement

We acknowledge that, at UNLV, we are on the ancestral lands of the Nuwuvi, Southern Paiute People. We acknowledge the Indigenous People of the lands where UNLV now stands - and recognize that these have always been places of teaching and learning. I wish to pay respect to their Elders - past, present and emerging - and acknowledge the important role Nuwuvi, Southern Paiute People, continue to play within the UNLV community. This acknowledgement and the centering of Native peoples is a start as we move forward for many years to come.

To learn about the Las Vegas Paiute Tribe and the Moapa Band of Paiutes.

To learn more about Land Acknowledgement and moving beyond land acknowledgments to be in solidarity with Native nations.
To Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, Questioning, Intersex and Asexual Students of Color,

Student Diversity and Social Justice unapologetically sees, affirms, and asserts the importance of your multiple identities to the centrality of our work. This guide is first and foremost for you.

In the fall of 2019, the LGBTQ & Gender Team conducted three focus groups for LGBTQ students at UNLV. In the queer and trans people of color focus group, students detailed the ways they often felt like their identities were being separated or how they wanted to bring their full selves into every room on campus. We hope this guide is a helpful starting place for your self articulation. Audre Lorde powerfully said, “If I didn’t define myself for myself, I would be crunched into other people’s fantasies for me and eaten alive.” This guide is an attempt to help queer and trans people of color to define ourselves for ourselves and to resist the crunching, and the definitions that do not serve us and our liberation. Lastly, this guide is made to honor the past students whose persistent and passionate activism led to the creation of Student Diversity & Social Justice. We are extremely thankful for you.

Stonewall Forever – A Documentary about the Past, Present and Future of Pride
Director: Ro Haber
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6Ir7dJTync
Stonewall Forever brings together queer activists, experienced and new, to look at the movement for LGBTQ equality before, during and after Stonewall. It highlights trans people, people of color and homeless people who were at the forefront of the movement, and who have often been erased from the narrative. It explores how the activism of today stands on the shoulders of the activists who have come before. And it asks us all to recognize the legacy of Stonewall that remains today, when the struggle for queer rights is far from over.

Why Coming Out Has a Different Meaning for Queer/Trans People of Color
Jonathan P. Higgins (2017)
Coming out is “not just about acknowledging that you are different. It is about acknowledging how you negotiate said differences and how you navigate surviving in a world that was not built for you. Coming out means negotiating the ways you are made to feel different while searching for ways to make yourself feel whole. It is about fighting to get your voice heard in multiple communities that often silence you and the challenges that might come with getting non-marginalized individuals to believe that your experiences and your identity is in fact valid.”

17 Trans-of-Color Leaders Resisting, Inspiring, and Keeping it Real in 2017
Alan Peleaz Lopez (2017)
This article explores how we should “support our leaders (financially, emotionally, physically, and spiritually) so that they can continue to develop young leadership.” They include 17 leaders in the article so that we can “learn about these leaders, financially support them, book them, lead next to them, and reach out.”
Stop Ignoring Queer and Trans People of Color
Carmen Chu (2019)
This article talks about how the “voices of queer and trans people of color (QTPOC) are so often ignored and left out.” “For those unsupported by spaces based both upon LGBTQIA+ support and upon ethnic, cultural, and racial identities, navigating identity—particularly at college—can be daunting. People of color often feel forced to separate their sexual orientation and gender identities from their racial identity.” “The world needs to change the attitudes and movements we subscribe to, giving our attention to #BlackTransLivesMatter and supporting QTPOC in power and in the media.”

Do the Right Work: This is How You Can Support Trans Women of Color Right Now
Princess Harmony Rodriguez (2015)
This article gives a great starting list on how to support trans women of color.

Asexual People of Color on their Experiences
Anais Rivero (2017)
There is no one set experience for asexual people of color, everyone has a different experience and not all races or ethnicities are even featured in this article. The important thing is that we acknowledge the different experiences and challenges this marginalized group goes through and make their struggles known, both the LGBTQ+ community and allies alike.

How White LGBTQIA+ People Can Be More Inclusive of People of Color
Jarune Uwujaren (2013)
Unfortunately, the LGBTQIA+ community is not devoid of casual racism. Even though, in theory, people should know better, certain forms of racism in the LGBTQ community have become so normalized that they get brushed off as minor.” “If you’re a white and LGBTQ and you want to make sure that LGBTQIA+ spaces are as safe and inclusive for everyone as possible, here are some steps you can take to support people of color and be more racially aware.

4 Unique Struggles That Queer and Trans People of Color Have to Deal With Joamette Gil (2016)
Experiences and struggles of LGBTQIA+ people of color (QTPOC) shown through comics. “Learn about the impact of factors like gendered racism, fetishization, and violence targeting queer people of color, and you’ll understand why we need to address how various forms of oppression multiply each other. This will also help you understand how to support LGBTQIA+ people of color – starting with the reminder to ‘just trust us when we tell our stories.

Being an Ally to Queer People of Color
Campus Pride (2013)
A List by the QPOC Caucus that the Queer People of Color Caucus brainstormed. This articles shows “just a few things that white allies can do in order to better support people of color within the movement.”

Juliet Takes a Breath
Gabby Rivera (2016)

This story follows Juliet Milagros Palante, a Puerto Rican lesbian from the Bronx on her journey out west to Portland, Oregon. Readers follow her coming out story filled with anxiety and fear that her mom won’t ever talk to her again. Palante has a plan to figure this all out though, she’s going to intern with her favorite author to study feminism, women’s bodies, and other super-gay stuff. This novel is a heartwarming and stunning story that navigates family, race, coming out, sexuality, and so much more. You won’t be able to put it down.

Aristotle and Dante Discover the Secrets of the Universe
Benjamin Alire Sáenz (2012)

Aristotle is an angry teen with a brother in prison. Dante is a know-it-all who has an unusual way of looking at the world. When the two meet at the swimming pool, they seem to have nothing in common. But as the loners start spending time together, they discover that they share a special friendship—the kind that changes lives and lasts a lifetime. And it is through this friendship that Ari and Dante will learn the most important.

The Color Purple
Alice Walker (1982)

Set in the deep American South between the wars, it is the tale of Celie, a young black girl born into poverty and segregation. Raped repeatedly by the man she calls ‘father’, she has two children taken away from her, is separated from her beloved sister Nettie and is trapped into an ugly marriage. But then she meets the glamorous Shug Avery, singer and magic-maker – a woman who has taken charge of her own destiny. Gradually, Celie discovers the power and joy of her own spirit, freeing her from her past and reuniting her with those she loves.
Simon vs. the Homo Sapiens Agenda
Becky Albertalli (2015)

Sixteen-year-old and not-so-openly gay Simon Spier prefers to save his drama for the school musical. But when an email falls into the wrong hands, his secret is at risk of being thrust into the spotlight. Now Simon is actually being blackmailed: if he doesn’t play wingman for class clown Martin, his sexual identity will become everyone’s business. Worse, the privacy of Blue, the pen name of the boy he’s been emailing, will be compromised. With some messy dynamics emerging in his once tight-knit group of friends, and his email correspondence with Blue growing more flirtatious every day, Simon’s junior year has suddenly gotten all kinds of complicated. Now, change-averse Simon has to find a way to step out of his comfort zone before he’s pushed out—without alienating his friends, compromising himself, or fumbling a shot at happiness with the most confusing, adorable guy he’s never met.

Everything Leads to You
Nina LaCour (2014)

A wunderkind young set designer, Emi has already started to find her way in the competitive Hollywood film world. Emi is a film buff and a true romantic, but her real-life relationships are a mess. She has desperately gone back to the same girl too many times to mention. But then a mysterious letter from a silver screen legend leads Emi to Ava. Ava is unlike anyone Emi has ever met. She has a tumultuous, not-so-glamorous past, and lives an unconventional life. She’s enigmatic…. She’s beautiful. And she is about to expand Emi’s understanding of family, acceptance, and true romance.

Our Bloody Pearl
D.N Bryn (2018)

The ocean is uncontrollable and dangerous. But to the sirens who swim the warm island waters, it’s a home more than worth protecting from the humans and their steam-propelled ships. Between their hypnotic voices and the strength of their powerful tails, sirens have little to fear. That is, until the ruthless pirate captain, Kian, creates a device to cancel out their songs. Perle was the first siren captured, and while all since have either been sold or killed, Kian still keeps them prisoner. Though their song is muted and their tail paralyzed, Perle’s hope for escape rekindles as another pirating vessel seizes Kian’s ship. This new captain seems different, with his brilliant smile and his promises that Kian will never again be Perle’s master. But he’s still a human, and a captor in his own way. The compassion he and his rag-tag human family show can’t be sincere… or can it? Soon it becomes clear that Kian will hunt Perle relentlessly, taking down any siren in her path. As the tides turn, Perle must decide whether to run from Kian forever, or ride the forming wave into battle, hoping their newfound human companions will fight with them.

Guapa
Saleem Haddad (2016)

Set over the course of twenty-four hours, Guapa follows Rasa, a gay man living in an unnamed Arab country, as he tries to carve out a life for himself in the midst of political and social upheaval. Rasa spends his days translating for Western journalists and pining for the nights when he can sneak his lover, Taymour, into his room. One night Rasa’s grandmother—the woman who raised him—catches them in bed together. The following day Rasa is consumed by the search for his best friend Maj, a fiery activist and drag queen star of the underground bar, Guapa, who has been arrested by the police. Ashamed to go home and face his grandmother, and reeling from the potential loss of the three most important people in his life, Rasa roams the city’s slums and prisons, the lavish weddings of the country’s elite, and the bars where outcasts and intellectuals drink to a long-lost revolution. Each new encounter leads him closer to confronting his own identity, as he revisits his childhood and probes the secrets that haunt his family. As Rasa confronts the simultaneous collapse of political hope and his closest personal relationships, he is forced to discover the roots of his alienation and try to re-emerge into a society that may never accept him.
Darius the Great Is Not Okay
Adib Khorram (2018)

Darius Kellner speaks better Klingon than Farsi, and he knows more about Hobbit social cues than Persian ones. He’s about to take his first-ever trip to Iran, and it’s pretty overwhelming—especially when he’s also dealing with clinical depression, a disapproving dad, and a chronically anemic social life. In Iran, he meets Sohrab, the boy next door who changes everything. Sohrab makes sure people speak English so Darius can understand what's going on. He gets Darius an Iranian National Football Team jersey that makes him feel like a True Persian for the first time. And he understands that sometimes, best friends don't have to talk. Darius has never had a true friend before, but now he's spending his days with Sohrab playing soccer, eating rosewater ice cream, and sitting together for hours in their special place, a rooftop overlooking the Yazdi skyline. Sohrab calls him Darioush—the original Persian version of his name—and Darius has never felt more like himself than he does now that he’s Darioush to Sohrab. When it’s time to go home to America, he'll have to find a way to be Darioush on his own.

The Quiet Violence of Dreams: A Novel
K. Sello Duiker (2010)

“The Quiet Violence of Dreams is set in Cape Town's cosmopolitan neighbourhoods - Observatory, Mowbray and Sea Point - where subcultures thrive and alternative lifestyles are tolerated. The plot revolves around Tshepo, a student at Rhodes, who gets confined to a Cape Town mental institution after an episode of ‘cannabis-induced psychosis’. He escapes but is returned to the hospital and completes his rehabilitation, earns his release – and promptly terminates his studies. He now works as a waiter and shares an apartment with a newly released prisoner. The relationship with his flatmate deteriorates and Tshepo loses his job at the Waterfront. Desperate for an income, he finds work at a male massage parlour, using the pseudonym Angelo. The novel explores Tshepo-Angelo's coming to consciousness of his sexuality, sexual orientation, and place in the world. lifestyle and set of experiences are explored - that of a young black woman who gets involved with a disabled German student who does not want to commit to marriage, despite Mmabatho's unplanned pregnancy.”

Drapetomania: Or, The Narrative of Cyrus Tyler & Abednego Tyler, lovers
John R. Gordon (2018)

“When house–servant Abednego is sold away south, his heartbroken field-hand lover Cyrus snaps and flees the estate on which he has lived his entire life. Leaving everything he knows behind him, evading dogs and patrollers as he heads north, in the midst of a dismal swamp Cyrus receives the revelation that Abednego is his true North Star, and, impossible though it seems, he determines to find and rescue his lost lover from slavery. Ten years in the writing, Drapetomania, Or The Narrative of Cyrus Tyler & Abednego Tyler, lovers, is an epic tale of black freedom, uprising, and a radical representation of romantic love between black men in slavery times. A riveting, masterful work. Set against the brutalizing, material captivity meant to break the soul, that came to define the chattel enslavement of Africans in the American south, Drapetomania tells the compelling story of two men whose love for each other reimagines the erotic contours of what was possible under the whip and scrutiny of catastrophic bondage. Here is a story of love so powerful, so achingly present, it dares to consider not just the past but the future, as vital to freedom; and in doing so, defies any notion of the black enslaved body as an ugly, unpalatable thing, unworthy of the sweetness of love. Gordon's novel enters the company of such classic works as Edward P. Jones's The Known World, Toni Morrison's Beloved, and Barry Unsworth's Sacred Hunger. We will be reading and talking about this extraordinary novel for years to come.”
Dirty River: A Queer Femme of Color Dreaming Her Way Home
Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha (2015)

In 1996, poet Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha ran away from America with two backpacks and ended up in Canada, where she discovered queer anarchopunk love and revolution, yet remained haunted by the reasons she left home in the first place. This passionate and riveting memoir is a mixtape of dreams and nightmares, of immigration court lineups and queer South Asian dance nights; it reveals how a disabled queer woman of color and abuse survivor navigates the dirty river of the past and, as the subtitle suggests, “dreams her way home.”

The Other Side of Paradise: A Memoir Redefining
Staceyann Chin (2009)

No one knew Staceyann’s mother was pregnant until a dangerously small baby was born on the floor of her grandmother’s house in Jamaica, on Christmas Day. Staceyann’s mother did not want her, and her father was not present. No one, except her grandmother, thought Staceyann would survive. It was her grandmother who nurtured and protected and provided for Staceyann and her older brother in the early years. But when the three were separated, Staceyann was thrust, alone, into an unfamiliar and dysfunctional home in Paradise, Jamaica. Told with grace, humor, and courage, Chin plumbs tender and unsettling memories as she writes about drifting from one home to the next, coming out as a lesbian, finding the man she believes to be her father, and ultimately, discovering her voice.

Borderlands/La Frontera: The New Mestiza
Gloria E. Anzaldúa (1987)

A semi-autobiographical work by Gloria E. Anzaldúa that includes prose and poems detailing the invisible “borders” that exist between Latinas/os and non-Latinas/os, men and women, heterosexuals and homosexuals, and other groups.
Queer and Trans Artists of Color: Stories of Some of Our Lives
Nia King (2014)
Mixed-race queer art activist Nia King left a full-time job in an effort to center her life around making art. Grappling with questions of purpose, survival, and compromise, she started a podcast called We Want the Airwaves in order to pick the brains of fellow queer and trans artists of color about their work, their lives, and “making it” - both in terms of success and in terms of survival. In this collection of interviews, Nia discusses fat burlesque with Magnoliah Black, queer fashion with Kiam Marcelo Junio, interning at Playboy with Janet Mock, dating gay Latino Republicans with Julio Salgado, intellectual hazing with Kortney Ryan Ziegler, gay gentrification with Van Binfa, getting a book deal with Virgie Tovar, the politics of black drag with Micia Mosely, evading deportation with Yosimar Reyes, weird science with Ryka Aoki, gay public sex in Africa with Nick Mwaluko, thin privilege with Fabian Romero, the tyranny of “self-care” with Lovemme Corazón, “selling out” with Miss Persia and Daddie$ Pla$tit, the self-employed art activist hustle with Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha, and much, much more.

Redefining Realness: My Path to Womanhood, Identity, Love & So Much More
Janet Mock (2015)
This powerful memoir follows Mock’s quest for identity, from an early, unwavering conviction about her gender to a turbulent adolescence in Honolulu that saw her transitioning during the tender years of high school, self-medicating with hormones at fifteen, and flying across the world alone for sex reassignment surgery at just eighteen. With unflinching honesty, Mock uses her own experience to impart vital insight about the unique challenges and vulnerabilities of trans youth and brave girls like herself.

Black on Both Sides: A Racial History of Trans Identity
C. Riley Snorton (2017)
The story of Christine Jorgensen, America’s first prominent transsexual, famously narrated trans embodiment in the postwar era. Her celebrity, however, has obscured other mid-century trans narratives—ones lived by African Americans such as Lucy Hicks Anderson and James McHarris. Their erasure from trans history masks the profound ways race has figured prominently in the construction and representation of transgender subjects. In Black on Both Sides, C. Riley Snorton identifies multiple intersections between blackness and transness from the mid-nineteenth century to present-day anti-black and anti-trans legislation and violence.

Asegi Stories: Cherokee Queer and Two-Spirit Memory
Qwo-Li Driskill (2016)
As the first full-length work of scholarship to develop a tribally specific Indigenous Queer or Two-Spirit critique, Asegi Stories examines gender and sexuality in Cherokee cultural memory, how they shape the present, and how they can influence the future. The theoretical and methodological underpinnings of Asegi Stories derive from activist, artistic, and intellectual genealogies, referred to as “dissent lines” by Maori scholar Linda Tuhiwai Smith. Driskill intertwines Cherokee and other Indigenous traditions, women of color feminisms, grassroots activisms, queer and Trans studies and politics, rhetoric, Native studies, and decolonial politics. Drawing from oral histories and archival documents in order to articulate Cherokee-centered Two-Spirit critiques, Driskill contributes to the larger intertribal movements for social justice.
Queering the Color Line: Race and the Invention of Homosexuality in American Culture (Series Q)
Siobhan B. Somerville (2000)
Queering the Color Line transforms previous understandings of how homosexuality was "invented" as a category of identity in the United States beginning in the late nineteenth century. Analyzing a range of sources, including sexology texts, early cinema, and African American literature, Siobhan B. Somerville argues that the emerging understanding of homosexuality depended on the context of the black/white "color line," the dominant system of racial distinction during this period. This book thus critiques and revises tendencies to treat race and sexuality as unrelated categories of analysis, showing instead that race has historically been central to the cultural production of homosexuality.

Queer There and Everywhere: 22 People Who Changed the World
Sarah Pragar (2017)
This first-ever LGBTQ history book for young adults will appeal to fans of fun, empowering pop-culture books like Rad American Women A-Z and Notorious RBG. World history has been made by countless lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer individuals—and you've never heard of many of them. Queer author and activist Sarah Prager delves deep into the lives of 22 people who fought, created, and loved on their own terms. From high-profile figures like Abraham Lincoln and Eleanor Roosevelt to the trailblazing gender-ambiguous Queen of Sweden and a bisexual blues singer who didn't make it into your history books, these astonishing true stories uncover a rich queer heritage that encompasses every culture, in every era. By turns hilarious and inspiring, the beautifully illustrated Queer, There, and Everywhere is for anyone who wants the real story of the queer rights movement.

Queer Indigenous Studies: Critical Interventions in Theory, Politics, and Literature
Qwo-Li Driskill, Scott Lauria Morgensen, Brian Joseph Gilley, Chris Finley (2015)
Based on the reality that queer Indigenous people experience multilayered oppression that profoundly impacts our safety, health, and survival, this book is at once an imagining and an invitation to the reader to join in the discussion of decolonizing queer Indigenous research and theory and, by doing so, to partake in allied resistance working toward positive change.

Zami: A New Spelling of My Name
Audre Lorde (1982)
ZAMI is a fast-moving chronicle. From the author's vivid childhood memories in Harlem to her coming of age in the late 1950s, the nature of Audre Lorde's work is cyclical. It especially relates the linkage of women who have shaped her... Lorde brings into play her craft of lush description and characterization. It keeps unfolding page after page.
Sovereign Erotics: A Collection of Two-Spirit Literature
Qwo-Li Driskill (2011)

Two-Spirit people, identified by many different tribally specific names and standings within their communities, have been living, loving, and creating art since time immemorial. It wasn't until the 1970s, however, that contemporary queer Native literature gained any public notice. Even now, only a handful of books address it specifically, most notably the 1988 collection Living the Spirit: A Gay American Indian Anthology. Since that book's publication twenty-three years ago, there has not been another collection published that focuses explicitly on the writing and art of Indigenous Two-Spirit and Queer people. This landmark collection strives to reflect the complexity of identities within Native Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer, and Two-Spirit (GLBTQ2) communities. Gathering together the work of established writers and talented new voices, this anthology spans genres (fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and essay) and themes (memory, history, sexuality, indigeneity, friendship, family, love, and loss) and represents a watershed moment in Native American and Indigenous literatures, Queer studies, and the intersections between the two.

Black Girl Dangerous on Race, Queerness, Class and Gender
Mia McKenzie (2014)

Mia McKenzie, creator of the enormously popular website Black Girl Dangerous, writes about race, queerness, class and gender in a concise, compelling voice filled at different times with humor, grief, rage, and joy. In this collection of her work from BGD (now available only in this book), McKenzie's nuanced analysis of intersecting systems of oppression goes deep to reveal the complicated truths of a multiply-marginalized experience. McKenzie tackles the hardest questions of our time with clarity and courage, in language that is accessible to non-academics and academics alike. She is both fearless and vulnerable, demanding and accountable. Hers is a voice like no other.

Sister Outsider: Essays and Speeches
Audre Lorde (1984)

In this charged collection of fifteen essays and speeches, Lorde takes on sexism, racism, ageism, homophobia, and class, and propounds social difference as a vehicle for action and change. Her prose is incisive, unflinching, and lyrical, reflecting struggle but ultimately offering messages of hope.

Brother to Brother: New Writings by Black Gay Men
Essex Hemphill (1991)

Literary Nonfiction. African American Studies. LGBT Studies. Winner of a Lambda Literary Award. BROTHER TO BROTHER, begun by Joseph Beam and completed by Essex Hemphill after Beam's death in 1988, is a collection of now-classic literary work by black gay male writers.
Black Writers Matter
Whitney French (2019)
Whitney French has performed a small miracle by bringing these stories in Black Writers Matter into a single anthology. This collection stands out from previous literary anthologies in that all the stories are written from the first-person perspective, and thus are extremely personal. And yet they are simultaneously political because Black writing by its very nature is political.

Victor Román Mendoza (2015)
Mendoza analyzes laws, military records, the writing of Philippine students in the United States, and popular representations of Philippine colonial subjects to show how their lives, bodies, and desires became the very battleground for the consolidation of repressive legal, economic, and political institutions and practices of the U.S. colonial state. By highlighting the importance of racial and gendered violence in maintaining control at home and abroad, Mendoza demonstrates that studies of U.S. sexuality must take into account the reach and impact of U.S. imperialism.

Ain’t No Place for a Hero: Borderlands
Kaitilin Tremblay (2017)
A deep dive into the groundbreaking and bestselling video game series The critically acclaimed first-person shooter franchise Borderlands knows it’s ridiculous. It’s a badge of pride. After all, Borderlands 2 was promoted with the tagline “87 bazillion guns just got bazillionder.” These space-western games encourage you to shoot a lot of enemies and monsters, loot their corpses, and have a few chuckles while chasing down those bazillion guns. As Kaitilin Tremblay explores in Ain’t No Place for a Hero, the Borderlands video game series satirizes its own genre, exposing and addressing the ways first-person shooter video games have tended to exclude women, queer people, and people of colour, as well as contribute to a hostile playing environment. Tremblay also digs into the way the Borderlands game franchise – which has sold more than 26 million copies – disrupts traditional notions of heroism, creating nuanced and compelling storytelling that highlights the strengths and possibilities of this relatively new narrative medium.

Post-Borderlandia: Chicana Literature and Gender Variant Critique
T. Jackie Cuevas (2018)
Bringing Chicana/o studies into conversation with queer theory and transgender studies, Post-Borderlandia examines why gender variance is such a core theme in contemporary Chicana and Chicanx narratives. It considers how Chicana butch lesbians and Chicanx trans people are not only challenging heteropatriarchal norms, but also departing from mainstream conceptions of queerness and gender identification.
Double Melancholy: Art, Beauty, and the Making of a Brown Queer Man
C.E. Gatchalian (2019)

According to Didier Eribon, melancholy is where it all starts and where it also ends: the lifelong process of mourning that each homosexual experiences, and through which they construct their own identity. In this beguiling book, an introverted, anxious, ambitious, artistically gifted queer Filipino-Canadian boy finds solace, inspiration, and a "syllabus for living" in art—works of literature and music, from the children's literary classic Anne of Green Gables to the music of Maria Callas. But their contribution to his intellectual, emotional, and spiritual edification belies the fact that they were largely heteronormative and white, which had the effect of invisibilizing him as a queer person of color.

Black Queer Ethics, Family, and Philosophical Imagination
Thelathia Nikki Young (2016)

This book acknowledges and highlights the moral excellence embedded in black queer practices of family. Taking the lives, narratives, and creative explorations of black queer people seriously, Thelathia Nikki Young brings readers on a journey of new, queer ethical methods that include confrontation, resistance, and imagination. Young asserts that family and its surrounding norms are both microcosms of and foundations for human relationships. She discusses how black queer people are moral subjects whose ethical reflection, lived experience, and embodied action demonstrate valuable moral agency for those of us thinking about liberating and life-giving ways to enact "family." Young posits that black queer people enact moral agency in ways that ought to be understood qua moral agency.

Rescuing Jesus: How People of Color, Women, and Queer Christians Are Reclaiming Evangelicalism
Deborah Jian Lee (2015)

Generational changes and the shifting racial make-up of evangelicals are transforming the movement and pushing it in a more progressive direction. A young and diverse array of people on this leading edge of progressive evangelicalism—LGBTQ and straight; white, black, Asian, Hispanic, and indigenous—are working to wrest political power away from conservatives. Today’s young evangelicals are more likely than their elders to accept same-sex marriage, more inclined to think of “pro-life” issues as being about supporting society’s disenfranchised, and more accepting of equality between men and women. With empathy, journalistic rigor, and powerful storytelling, Lee unpacks the diverse and complex strands of this movement—and what it means for the rest of us. Given the clout that evangelicals still hold in national politics, Lee argues, this movement is important not only for the future of evangelicalism but also for the future of our country.

The SafeWordSociety Podcast

The SafeWordSociety Podcast launched in 2017 by QTPOC visibility company, SafeWordSociety is heralded for archiving the authentic narratives of QTPOC as a social justice initiative for public broadcasting and social networks. The hosts, Kristen McCallum and Lamika Young, use interviews, discussions with thought leaders, influencers and community members to navigate the authenticity of their identity. Their mission is to create a safe space for versatility and self-definition while uplifting the stories of those that are too often muted.

Queer Kids Cool Shit

The purpose of this podcast is to cultivate a space for critical discussion on queerness/trans*ness with an emphasis on QTPOC (queer/trans people of color). The fluidity of the context of this podcast means that we can have anything from storytelling, interviews, rants and pretty much anything that comes up. Mel Y. Chen discusses the importance of documenting queer/trans histories and creating an “everywhere archive.” The livelihoods, stories and historied of QTPOC have been violently erased from society at large, but that doesn't mean we are forgotten.

The BiCast

The aptly named “BiCast” podcast fills an important gap in LGBTQ programming and is brought to us by BiNet USA, a national organization advocating for bisexual, pansexual, fluid, queer-identified and unlabeled people. Geared towards providing a platform for and amplifying bi voices, “The BiCast” offers news, information, and most importantly, community for bi+ people. The show is hosted by Lynnette McFadzen (President of BiNet USA), Becca Tsarna, and Mick Collins—self-described “regular people” who make up a fun and dedicated cast of characters. In each episode, one of the hosts meets with notable authors, artists, and activists to discuss issues of inclusion, health, representation, and creativity.

Black Girl Dangerous Podcast

Created by the geniuses who started Black Girl Dangerous, a popular online blog and news source that seeks to amplify the voices of queer and trans people of color, the “Black Girl Dangerous Podcast” offers a “much needed dose of intersectional analysis on your favorite moments and current events.” Hosted by Raquel Willis, a media savvy Black queer transgender activist, this podcast discusses everything from Amber Rose, to Congressman John Lewis, to the Black Church. Willis is a strong believer in the power of digital media as a tool of resistance and liberation and has succeeded in her endeavor to create an inclusive and intersectional space for conversations and learning.

Café con Chisme

“Café con Chisme is a Latinx podcast hosted by siblings YAZ and SEB. Based out of Whittier, California, this social justice-focused show brings much-needed conversations on racism, LGBTQ issues, and self-care to other Latinxs, People of Color, and queer folks.”

They provide a community for resource sharing, connection, and learning among queer and trans people of color committed to improving mental health for their communities. The organization also operates a Mental Health Fund for Queer and Trans People of Color, which provides financial assistance in order to increase access to mental health support and address the economic barriers many queer and trans people of color face within healthcare.

Trevor Project
https://www.thetrevorproject.org

The leading national organization providing crisis intervention and suicide prevention services to LGBTQ young people under 25. The Trevor Project was founded in 1998 by the creators of the Academy Award®-winning short film TREVOR, and since then, hundreds of thousands of young people in crisis have reached out to The Trevor Project's multiple in-person and online life-saving resources, including 24-hour mental health hotline, webchat, and text message services.

Transgender Law Center
https://transgenderlawcenter.org

The largest national trans-led organization advocating self-determination for all people. They are a multi-disciplinary organization that uses litigation, policy advocacy, education, movement building, and direct service to meet the needs of transgender communities. Their programs include the Detention Project, which works to end the abuses transgender people experience in prisons, jails, immigration detention, and at the hands of law enforcement, the Legal Resistance Network, which provide pro bono legal services, the Transgender Immigrant Defense Effort, which provides legal services to transgender immigrants, and more.

Gill Foundation
https://gillfoundation.org

One of the nation’s leading funders of efforts to secure full equality for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people. The foundation offers grant funding to nonprofits that work to advance equality through research, education, policy, and the legal system. Their focus lies in securing change to administrative policies at the state level. Founded in 1994 by philanthropist Tim Gill, the foundation has since invested more than $335 million in programs and nonprofit organizations throughout the country.

It Gets Better Project
https://itgetsbetter.org

A nonprofit organization dedicated to uplifting, empowering, and connecting LGBT youth across the globe. In 2010, Dan Savage and his partner, Terry Miller, started a global movement with these three words. It began as a widespread social media campaign to provide hope, encouragement, and community to LGBT youth, and has now evolved into a major platform, reaching millions of young people each year. Their ultimate goal remains the same: showing LGBT youth that although growing up isn’t easy, no one has to do it alone.

The Audre Lorde Project
https://alp.org/

The Audre Lorde Project is a Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Two Spirit, Trans and Gender Non Conforming People of Color center for community organizing, focusing on the New York City area.
