MNOZIL BRASS: GOLD
Friday, March 3, 2023
7:30 p.m.
$50 - $40 - $30 - $20

With sell-out performances around the globe, Mnozil Brass, one of the world’s premier brass ensembles, captivates audiences. Hailed in North America as “seriously funny” and “whimsically brazen,” the comedic brass ensemble performs a wide-ranging repertoire with fearlessness, immense technical skill, and typical Viennese “schmäh” (loosely translated: a kind of sarcastic charm!).

BOKYUNG BYUN
Friday, March 24, 2023
7:30 p.m.
$30

The UNLV Performing Arts Center welcomes the 2021 winner of the Guitar Foundation of America’s International Concert Artist Competition. Praised by Classical Guitar Magazine as “confident and quite extraordinary,” Korean guitarist Bokyung Byun performs both contemporary and traditional works. American Record Guide hailed the “creative phrasings … and dynamics” of her 2020 debut CD.

EMANUEL AX
Thursday, April 20, 2023 · 7:30 p.m.
$50 - $40 - $30 - $20

Few, if any, can match the piano artistry of GRAMMY® Award-winning Emanuel Ax. The New York Times raved, “Ax … played with youthful brio, incisive rhythm, bountiful imagination, delicacy,” while the Seattle Times extolled, Ax “…has a way of seeming to enfold every listener in a metaphorical embrace.”

MENG SU
Friday, May 5, 2023 · 7:30 p.m.
$30

Multifaceted guitarist Meng Su is captivating audiences around the world with her stunning virtuosity and refined artistry. New York Concert Review writes her performance is “… seemingly effortless and stunningly polished.” She often performs as part of the Beijing Guitar Duo, began studying the guitar at age 5, and currently teaches at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. Classical Guitar Magazine called her debut recording “awe-inspiring.”
