Doctor of Medical Physics Program Handbook

Welcome
The Doctor of Medical Physics is a four-year professional degree program in therapeutic medical physics that provides a direct path to certification and gainful employment in clinical medical physics. The first two years of the program curriculum is very similar to UNLV's accredited Master of Science in medical physics program during which students take didactic coursework emphasizing the fundamentals of therapeutic medical physics. During the last two years, students are placed in clinical rotations in local and regional radiation oncology centers and/or hospitals where they are exposed to the practical aspects of therapeutic medical physics. The DMP program is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Medical Physics Education Programs (CAMPEP).

Mission Statement
The mission of the Doctor of Medical Physics (DMP) Program is to provide a high-quality graduate education experience for students in therapeutic medical physics. The educational experience comprises rigorous classroom instruction aided by computer and multi-media instruction, practical laboratory experiences, and clinical instruction. Program graduates will be capable of critical thinking and problem solving, devoted to a lifetime of learning, committed to the ethical standards of their profession, and highly sought after by employers.

Program Outcomes
The educational objectives for the doctorate in medical physics program are to provide students with:

- A comprehensive understanding of the fundamental principles associated with the clinical use of both ionizing and non-ionizing radiations.
- An understanding of basic sectional anatomy and common pathologies in medical imaging modalities including CT, MRI, ultrasound, and PET.
- An in-depth knowledge of the operation of radiation producing and detecting devices commonly used in therapeutic applications.
- An understanding of the basic computational principles associated with therapeutic and diagnostic applications.
- The clinical experience required for a complete understanding of the wide-ranging clinical duties of a therapeutic medical physicist.
- Research experiences in medical physics-related projects.
- A sound understanding of medical physics ethics and the ability to provide appropriate clinical care to patients in a professional manner.
- The capability of effectively communicating technical information in both oral and written form.
- The educational experience that will lead them to pursue a lifetime of self-directed learning and professional development.
Purpose
The purpose of this handbook is to provide program specific information that is not found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Students are responsible for understanding and following the policies and procedures delineated in this document and the UNLV Graduate Catalog, as well as the NSHE Code, UNLV Bylaws, and the UNLV Student Conduct Code. Questions about policies should be directed to the Graduate College: valarie.burke@unlv.edu or gradassociatedean@unlv.edu.

Program Requirements Program requirements regarding admission, coursework and culminating experience are found in the graduate catalog.

Degree Program Benchmarks
In order to graduate from the program students must:
1. Maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.0/4.0 or above each semester enrolled.
2. Receive a grade of B (3.0) or above (or satisfactory, where applicable) in all courses. If less than a B (or unsatisfactory) is earned, the course may be repeated. The student must be in good standing to repeat a course, and any course may be repeated only once.
3. Complete a minimum of six semester hours in each calendar year.
4. Complete a minimum of 80 credit hours (60 credit hours for students admitted with a masters degree.

Students entering the program with a B.S. degree have the option of leaving the program with a masters degree after successful completion of all non-clinical coursework. These students are required to take additional credits of professional paper (HPS 796) or thesis (HPS 797) to satisfy the research component of the master’s degree.

Students are required to complete a culminating experience (HPS 777) consisting of a clinical research project performed during their last two semesters in the program. Prior to the start of the project, students are required to present a project proposal to their project committee. At the
At the conclusion of the project, students will present the results to the committee via oral presentation and a written report. The project committee will consist of the program director, associate director, graduate college representative, and a minimum of two clinical physicists including the clinical project mentor.

Oral exams are used to evaluate students in clinical courses. The final grade (satisfactory/fail/incomplete) for each clinical class is based on the student’s performance on the oral exam which covers material from all clinical rotations constituting the class. The oral exam is graded on a 5-point scale (5 = excellent; 4 = good; 3 = satisfactory; 2 = poor and 1 = fail). A minimum score of 3 (satisfactory) in each clinical rotation is required to pass the class. Failure to achieve a satisfactory will result in remedial action as determined by the examination committee. In cases where the deficiencies are relatively minor, the student will be given an opportunity to correct the deficiencies without having to repeat the entire class. Based on the nature of the deficiencies, the program director, in consultation with members of the examination committee, will develop a remediation plan and an “incomplete” will be given for the course. Once the student has successfully completed the remediation plan, the “incomplete” will be removed and a grade of “satisfactory” will be assigned for the class. In cases where there are significant shortcomings (e.g. failing grades in multiple rotations within the class), the student will be required to repeat the entire class. At this point, the student will also be recommended by the Graduate Coordinator to the Graduate College to place the student on probation. Failure to pass a clinical class on the second attempt will result in separation from the Program.

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines
UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog. Non-academic dismissal may be warranted for any just cause including, but not limited to, serious or repeated infractions of established policies or procedures, failure to adhere to appropriate patient care, failure to demonstrate ethical or professional standards, failure to perform required work duties properly, or any action threatening the health, welfare or safety of any patient, visitor, colleague or employee. In such instances, the program director will request a special meeting with the program’s steering committee which will make the final decision. The student will receive a letter from the program director outlining the grounds for dismissal.

Annual Review Procedures
Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form [Formerly known as the Student Annual Review]. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead.

Faculty Advisors/Graduate Coordinators have the option to provide feedback to each students’ submitted IDP and provide acknowledgement that they have reviewed the IDP.

Reported student data is shared with students’ graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students’ strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner.

Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track UNLV metrics related to the annual productivity of all students.

Probation
If a student fails to successfully progress in their degree program, their department/school will recommend that the student be placed on probation by the Graduate College. Students on probation may be dismissed/separated from their program for failing to successfully meet the conditions of their probation by the deadline provided. Please see the Probation and Separation section of the Graduate Catalog for more information.
