

Water Resources Management Program Handbook

Welcome

Welcome to the Master of Science Program in Water Resources Management (WRM) at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. This interdisciplinary program is intended to provide students with the background to better understand technical, economic, and social issues associated with the utilization of the Earth's limited water supply. In choosing to enter this program, most students will be broadening their knowledge base well outside of their previous educational experiences, which can be both intimidating and exciting. Understanding the steps needed to complete your degree program will make the process seem less intimidating, so please review this handbook carefully as you begin your graduate studies, and then refer to it as you progress.

Michael J. Nicholl, Ph.D.
Director, Water Resources Management Graduate Program

Mission Statement(s)

The Water Resources Management (WRM) program in the College of Sciences at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas is a flexible, interdisciplinary course of study leading to a Master of Science degree. It is a technically and scientifically based program that blends the physical aspects of the hydrologic sciences with policy and management issues.

Purpose

The purpose of this handbook is to provide program specific information that is not found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Students are responsible for understanding and following the policies and procedures delineated in this document and the UNLV Graduate Catalog, as well as the NSHE Code, UNLV Bylaws, and the UNLV Student Conduct Code. Questions about policies should be directed to the Graduate College: valarie.burke@unlv.edu or GradAssociateDean@unlv.edu.

Program Faculty

Faculty must hold the appropriately approved graduate faculty status to be involved in graduate education at UNLV. For up to date information regarding graduate faculty status in your department, visit the Graduate Faculty status web page.

The WRM Graduate Program is interdisciplinary in nature. Membership in the WRM faculty is by application. Qualified faculty can request graduate faculty status in the WRM Program by contacting the Program Director.

Program Requirements

Program requirements regarding admission, coursework and culminating experience are found in the graduate catalog.

Advisory Committee Guidelines

All students in the Water Resources Management Program are required to form an advisory committee that is consistent with the policies of the UNLV Graduate College. In addition to the Graduate College policies, the committee must have at least one member whose home department is within the UNLV College of Sciences. Students are required to consult with the WRM Program Director prior to finalizing their advisory committee, or making changes to the advisory committee.

Degree Program Benchmarks

Research Prospectus

All WRM students are required to prepare and defend a research prospectus that defines the research question and scope of work to be completed for their culminating experience. Prior to developing a research prospectus, the student is expected to have extensive discussions on the topic with their advisor. The selection of the research topic is the responsibility of the individual student, and not that of the faculty member with whom the student desires to work. In addition, a faculty member may decline to direct any project. Once a student and their advisor have agreed on the nature and scope of research needed to satisfy the culminating experience component of their degree, the student is required to prepare a research prospectus and present it to their advisory committee for approval.

The research prospectus must clearly define the research problem to be considered, explain the importance of the problem, outline the approach that will be implemented to address the problem, and predict the expected outcome. The research prospectus should be sufficiently clear that the advisory committee is able to assess if: 1) the project is feasible; and 2) the student is prepared to embark on the proposed course of research.

The format and length of each individual research prospectus will be determined by discussions between the student and their advisor. A typical research prospectus submitted by a student in the WRM Program would include a 250-word abstract, six or more pages of double-spaced text, supporting figures, formatted references, a realistic budget, and a proposed time schedule for completion.

The research prospectus should be submitted to the student's advisor as early as possible, and prior to beginning the actual research. The student is required to have their advisor's approval before scheduling a meeting of their advisory committee to present and discuss their research prospectus. The nature of the presentation is up to the advisor, but typically involves a 15-20-minute oral presentation by the student. The research prospectus must be provided to the full advisory committee at least one week prior to the meeting. Following the committee meeting, the student should revise the research prospectus in accordance with suggestions from the committee. Following verbal approval from the advisory committee, it is the students' responsibility to initiate a properly prepared Prospectus Approval form through the Grad Rebel Gateway. If the student's research project changes in a substantive manner after the prospectus is approved, a new Prospectus Approval Form must be submitted and approved.

Subplan 1: Thesis Track

Thesis

Students pursuing their degree in WRM through Subplan 1 are required to produce and successfully defend a research thesis as their culminating experience. The thesis must be prepared in collaboration with the student's advisor and follow formatting directions available on the Graduate College website. Every thesis is unique, and individual advisors follow their own procedure in advising students.

Students are encouraged to review previous theses produced by their advisors' former students and other students in the WRM Program. There is no formal length requirement for a WRM thesis, the actual length will depend on the amount of material required to address the questions posed in the research prospectus. The advisory committee determine the standards and will have final say. The thesis may be written in the form of a manuscript suitable for publication; however, the advisory committee must review and approve the manuscript before it is submitted to a journal.

Writing the thesis is the student's responsibility, and may require multiple drafts before it is submitted to the advisory committee. Each student should be aware that their advisor has other commitments that will restrict their ability to review an individual thesis. Students should expect that their advisor will need a minimum of two weeks to review each draft of their thesis. This review and revision process may take several months; however, advisors and committee members always strive to provide timely feedback as much as possible. The thesis is not distributed to the other members of the advisory committee until the advisor deems it ready for their review. The advisory committee then has two weeks to review the draft and decide if it is ready to be defended. Committee members may suggest revisions and wish to see revised drafts before they concur that the thesis is defensible. The student is required to discuss suggested revisions with both the committee member and his/her advisor.

Thesis Defense

The student may schedule their thesis defense to occur a minimum of two weeks after the committee has concluded that the draft thesis is defensible. The thesis defense cannot be scheduled during university holidays, weekends, or the summer unless all committee members agree in advance. The composition of the committee shall not be changed to facilitate scheduling during these periods. The student is required to notify the WRM Program Director of the defense, and to post clearly visible notices advertising the defense in the building(s) where their advisor and the WRM Program Director have offices. These notifications must occur at least one week in advance of the thesis defense.

Students in the WRM Program are obligated to follow all requirements for the thesis defense stated in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. The first portion of all WRM thesis defenses is open to the public. Each defense will begin with an introduction by the advisor that includes a concise explanation of the examination procedure. The student will then give an oral presentation that summarizes their thesis. The presentation should be about 25 minutes in length and may not exceed 45 minutes. The public audience will be invited to ask questions following the presentation. At the end of this brief discussion period, the public audience will be excused and the advisory committee will proceed with their examination of the candidate. After completion of this question and answer period, the student will be dismissed, and the examination committee will evaluate the student's performance. After completing their deliberations, the committee should discuss their conclusions with the student. If the outcome of the thesis defense is passing, the student must make any needed changes to the thesis, receive final approval from the advisor/committee and submit the final document to the Graduate College. Upon notification of passing, it is the students' responsibility to initiate a properly prepared Culminating Experience Results form through the Grad Rebel Gateway.

Subplan 2: Professional Paper Track

Students in the WRM Program who are seeking their degree under Subplan 2 (Professional Paper) are required to follow the same procedures as for Subplan 1 (Thesis) with the following differences:

1. The scope of work required to complete a Professional Paper is expected to be considerably less than for a typical Thesis. The credit requirements in the degree program should be used as a rough guide; an approved Thesis counts for 6 credits of the degree program and an approved Professional Paper counts for 3 credits.
2. The advisory committee may choose to have an open or closed defense of the Professional Paper.
3. Copies of the approved Professional Paper are submitted to the advisor and the WRM Program Director, the Graduate College is not provided with a copy.

Program Timeline

The time required to complete the Master of Science degree in Water Resources Management (WRM) is highly variable. Many students in the WRM Program are seeking their degree part-time or are admitted with conditions that must be met before they proceed with their coursework and/or research. Both of these scenarios will extend the time required to complete the degree. Students who intend to finish in four semesters should plan on meeting the following sample timetable.

Recruitment of advisory committee - end of the first semester

Successful defense of the research prospectus - end of the second semester

Submission of a draft thesis or professional paper - start of the fourth semester

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines

UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog.

All students in the WRM Program must adhere to the UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity provided in the graduate catalog. This policy applies to all academic endeavors, including preliminary drafts.

In accordance with Nevada Law (NRS 200.650), students are prohibited from recording meetings or discussions without the full consent of the involved parties.

Annual Review Procedures

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead. Reported student data is shared with students' graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students' strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner. Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track metrics related to the annual productivity of all students. This online form will be sent by the Graduate College to the student's Rebel mail account. The mandatory review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress while setting goals for the year ahead.

Probation

If a student fails to successfully progress in their degree program, their department/school will recommend that the student be placed on probation by the Graduate College. Students on probation may be dismissed/separated from their program for failing to successfully meet the conditions of their probation by the deadline provided. Please see the Probation and Separation section of the Graduate Catalog for more information.

Discipline Resources

The WRM Program is interdisciplinary in nature. As such, outside resources used by students will vary with their academic/professional objectives and the topic of their Culminating Experience. Students are expected to consult with their advisor regarding: professional organizations, important journals, professional conferences, and the writing/reference style to be used in completing their culminating experience (Thesis or Professional Paper).
