

RESIDENT HANDBOOK

SECTION III: TRAINING ENVIRONMENT

RESIDENT DRESS STANDARD POLICY

INTRODUCTION

Residents are expected at all times to present a professional appearance appropriate to their role while representing the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV. Dress, grooming, and personal cleanliness standards contribute positively to the morale and professional image the resident physician presents to patients and their families. It represents another form of patient respect.

POLICY: STANDARDS FOR DRESS/GROOMING:

- I. All residents are required to maintain a professional, well-groomed appearance while performing their duties. Residents are expected to present a clean and neat appearance and dress according to the requirements of their assignments. Residents are expected to practice good hygiene.
- II. Hair should be neat, clean and arranged in a manner and length that does not interfere with patient care. Facial hair should be neatly groomed.
- III. Proper scrub wear is appropriate only in procedure and patient care areas, labor and delivery floors, in operating suites, intensive care units, and in the emergency room. It should be neat and clean whenever worn outside the immediate patient care areas and covered by a lab coat. It is permissible to wear scrubs to conference or administrative areas immediately adjacent to the hospital.
- IV. Protective covering of all kinds (shoe covers, gowns, goggles, gloves, masks, and caps) shall be worn only in areas specifically requiring their use (as per Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations).
- V. The following clothing is not acceptable or appropriate:
 - a. Leather or denim shirts, dresses, skirts, jackets or trousers (jeans); tank tops, t-shirts, (shirts without collars)
 - b. Sheer clothing; tight-fitting clothing (leotards, spandex)
 - c. Oversized or baggy shirts or pants; sweatpants or sweat shirts
 - d. Uncovered feet, sandals, thongs, moccasins
 - e. Hats and head coverings unless required or for religious or health-related reasons
- VI. Personal adornments not acceptable or appropriate:
 - a. Jewelry that interferes with patient care activities and distracts from the conservative, professional image
 - b. Visible skin piercing, (other than appropriate earrings), body markings or tattoos
 - c. Scented products are discouraged in consideration of patient's, their families', and co-workers' sensitivities or allergies
- VII. Lab coats: All residents are provided with lab coats. They may be worn in patient care areas and when worn should be relatively clean.

- VIII. Identification badges: an identification badge must be easily visible at all times. They should be worn above the waist and must not be altered or defaced in any way. Patients and their families must be able to identify first and last names by looking at the name badge.

Approved by Graduate Medical Education Committee April 2017