

Announcing Your Thesis or Dissertation Defense

The policy of the UNLV Graduate College is to announce all thesis and dissertation defenses. Thesis and dissertation defenses are open to the campus at large as well as the general public. The defense announcement should be publicized a minimum of two weeks prior to your defense date.

What parts of your defense are open to the public?

Only your defense presentation is open to the public. After you have presented your thesis or dissertation and audience members have had the opportunity to ask questions, all audience members will be thanked and asked to leave. After the audience has left, you and your committee will discuss your defense and your final document. Your committee will tell you if you have passed or failed your defense and if you are required to submit any additional revisions.
