Advisory Committee Guidelines

For programs that require a thesis or dissertation, a graduate advisory committee is mandatory and must conform to the Degree Progression Policies and Procedures provided in the graduate catalog.

Membership on PhD in Nursing Graduate Advisory Committees (GACs) is to be determined by the student in consultation with their advisor, other members of the faculty, the Director of Doctoral Education, and/or others as needed. GAC Chairs must be full-time members of the School of Nursing Faculty. While the student's advisor may also serve as Chair of the GAC, this is not required. Two additional faculty GAC members from the School of Nursing with appropriately approved graduate faculty status privileges and one faculty member from outside the School of Nursing (Graduate College Representative) are also required for a complete GAC.

Degree Program Benchmarks

Students in the PhD Program in Nursing are expected to have identified and confirmed the membership of their GAC no later than the end of the 6th trimester of study. Students should meet regularly with their advisor and/or GAC chair and other GAC members in preparation for development and completion of the Comprehensive Examination, Dissertation Proposal, and Dissertation.

Comprehensive Examination

Concurrent with completion of final coursework (prior to NURS 797), the student should schedule the Comprehensive Examination (CE).

The CE process includes determination of 3 critical dates:

1. The beginning of the three-week independent work period. During this period the student may not consult with member of the GAC, other current or former School of Nursing faculty members, or any other academic expert regarding the CE, its composition, or content. The independent work period must begin no later than Week 10 of the trimester in which the CE will be completed.
2. The due date for submission of the written CE to the Student Services Office for distribution of the written CE to the GAC for review.
3. The due date for completion of review and grading by the GAC, and submission of comments and final grade determination to the Student Services Office for review and confirmation. The GAC Chair will notify the student of the final result.

The written CE must be formatted according to School of Nursing Guidelines (see Discipline Resources below) and submitted electronically in either MS Word or Adobe PDF file format. In addition, the GAC will request that the student complete an oral examination on the content of the CE. This must be determined by the GAC when submitting comments and grading to the Student Services Office and be scheduled no later than 2 weeks prior to the end of the trimester.

The GAC must unanimously agree that the student has passed the CE, including both written and oral examinations, before the student may proceed in the program. If the student does not pass the written examination on the first attempt, a second attempt must be scheduled no sooner than 3 months and no later than 6 months following the first attempt. If the student does not pass the examination on the first attempt, the student will be placed on probation through the Graduate College. If the student is not successful in the second attempt, they will be separated from the PhD Program in Nursing.

If the student does not pass the oral examination, the student is considered to have failed the CE and must schedule a second CE attempt as described above. In such a case, the student must repeat BOTH written and oral examinations to pass the CE. If the student does not pass the CE on the first attempt, the student will be placed on probation through the Graduate College. If the student is not successful in the second attempt, they will be separated from the PhD Program in Nursing.

Dissertation Proposal

Upon successful completion of the CE, the student should begin developing the Dissertation Proposal and determine a date for the Dissertation Proposal Defense. The complete written Dissertation Proposal must be submitted to the GAC no less than 2 weeks before the oral Dissertation Proposal Defense Date. The student should prepare a 20-30 minute presentation on the Dissertation Proposal for the GAC on this date. The GAC will critique and comment on the written proposal and oral presentation at this time. The Dissertation Proposal must be unanimously approved by the student's GAC at the time of the oral defense. If the GAC cannot come to a unanimous decision at the time of the defense, the GAC chair will communicate the committee's concerns to the student and request revisions to the Dissertation Proposal. This process for addressing the committee's concerns on the written proposal and oral presentation may be repeated until the GAC comes to consensus OR a maximum of 2 attempts. If the student does not pass the Dissertation Proposal Defense on the first attempt, the student will be placed on probation through the Graduate College. If the student is not successful in the second attempt, they will be separated from the PhD Program in Nursing. Only after successfully passing the Dissertation proposal and defense and have successfully completed all course requirements (expect for dissertation credits), and filed the appropriate form, is the student considered to have attained Advanced to Candidacy status. Only after attaining Advanced to Candidacy status, is the student permitted to enroll in dissertation course credits.

Dissertation

There are two possible formats for the complete Dissertation:

1. The multiple-article Dissertation
2. The traditional format Dissertation

The student should consult with the GAC to determine which format the final Dissertation will take. Each format is detailed below.

The multiple-article Dissertation consists of the following elements:

- Dissertation Abstract
- Introduction and Background and Significance
- Theoretical Framework (if not incorporated in a subsequent section)
- A minimum of 3 professional-quality manuscripts determined by the GAC to be suitable for publication. The three-article dissertation must include a minimum of three articles reporting on research or scholarship undertaken as a doctoral student at UNLV (prior research, scholarship, creative activity, articles, or publications may not be used in a UNLV dissertation). The articles need not all be published prior to the final defense. By the time of the final defense, each article included in the Dissertation must be under-review, in-press, or published in a peer-reviewed professional journal. Please see the Graduate Catalog for more information about the requirements.
- By the time of the final defense, each article included in the Dissertation must be under-review, in-press, or published in a peer-reviewed professional journal.
- In addition to the articles, this format requires bridge sections introducing and linking each of the articles to form a cohesive document. Each article thus serves as a chapter within the larger dissertation.
- Conclusion and Implications
- Tables and appendices such as original study recruitment materials, questionnaires, surveys, interview guides, and/or other supporting documents.

For this format, it is strongly recommended that the student and GAC work together to identify appropriate target journals for each of the Dissertation manuscripts and that the student format each paper according to the Author Guidelines of that journal. The Abstract, Introduction and Background and Significance, Theoretical Framework, and Conclusion and Implications sections should be formatted according to School of Nursing Guidelines (see Discipline Resources below).

The traditional format Dissertation consists of the following elements, with each typically comprising one chapter:

- Introduction

- Background and Significance
- Review of Literature
- Methods
- Recruitment
- Results
 - Study Sample
 - Analysis
 - Findings
- Discussion
- Limitations
- Conclusion and Implications.

For this format, the student should follow School of Nursing Guidelines for formatting the final product (see Discipline Resources below).

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines

UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog.

NURSING STANDARDS

The American Nurses Association has defined standards and codes by which all nurses practice. As a professional program it is expected that students will demonstrate behaviors that reflect the defined standards of nursing throughout their academic experience. Students in the specialty areas will also be guided by published standards appropriate to their specialty.

American Nurses Association Standards of Nursing Practice

- The collection of data about the health status of the client/patient is systematic and continuous. The data are accessible, communicated, and recorded.
- Nursing diagnoses are derived from health status data.
- The plan of nursing care includes goals derived from the nursing diagnoses.
- The plan of nursing care includes priorities and the prescribed nursing approaches or measures to achieve the goals derived from the nursing diagnoses.
- Nursing actions provide for client/patient participation in health promotion, maintenance and restoration.
- Nursing actions assist the client/patient to maximize his health capabilities.
- The client's/patient's progress or lack of progress toward goal achievement is determined by the client/patient and the nurses.
- The client's/patient's progress or lack of progress toward goal achievement directs reassessment, reordering of priorities, new goal setting and revision of the plan of nursing care.

CODE OF ETHICS

The graduate program also adheres to the Code of Ethics for Nurses as published by the American Nurses Association (2015). Interpretive statements related to the statements identified below may be found at American Nurses Association Ethics

1. The nurse practices with compassion and respect for the inherent dignity, worth, and unique attributes of every person.
2. The nurse's primary commitment is to the patient, whether an individual, family, group, community, or population.
3. The nurse promotes, advocates for, and protects the rights, health, and safety of the patient.
4. The nurse has authority, accountability, and responsibility for nursing practice; makes decisions; and takes action consistent with the obligation to provide optimal care.
5. The nurse owes the same duties to self as to others, including the responsibility to promote health and safety, preserve wholeness of character and integrity, maintain competence, and continue personal and professional growth.
6. The nurse, through individual and collective effort, establishes, maintains, and improves the ethical environment of the work setting and conditions of employment that are conducive to safe, quality health care.
7. The nurse, in all roles and settings, advances the profession through research and scholarly inquiry, professional standards development, and the generation of both nursing and health policy.
8. The nurse collaborates with other health professionals and the public to protect human rights, promote health diplomacy, and reduce health disparities.
9. The profession of nursing, collectively through its professional organizations, must articulate nursing values, maintain the integrity of the profession, and integrate principles of social justice into nursing and health policy.

Annual Mandatory Individual Development Plan (IDP)

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form [Formerly known as the Student Annual Review]. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead.

Faculty Advisors/Graduate Coordinators have the option to provide feedback to each student's submitted IDP and provide acknowledgement that they have reviewed the IDP.

Reported student data is shared with students' graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students' strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner.

Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track UNLV metrics related to the annual productivity of all students.

Doctoral Student Update Form

Each Fall and Spring, doctoral students are required to meet with their advisor or chair of their GAC to review their School of Nursing Plan of Study and complete the Doctoral Student Update (DSU) form. The DSU should indicate any changes that need to be made to the Plan of Study, including courses taken outside of UNLV that should be added, as well as any accomplishments, awards, or other honors that the student has received since the last update. Both the student and advisor or chair can also add comments about the student's progress and plans, and both should then sign the form. The signed form and updated Plan of Study should be sent to the PhD Director and Graduate Engagement and Retention Coordinator. Registration for the subsequent term may be delayed if these forms are not received.
