ADDENDUM A

CHAPTER 811: RESEARCH CONTINUATION SCHOLARSHIP

SECTION 01: ESTABLISHMENT

A. There is hereby established the CSUN Research Continuation Scholarship for the purpose of supporting students from all academic disciplines who seek to continue research projects that were initiated and advanced during the preceding summer term. Secondarily, the scholarship is intended to reduce financial impediments (e.g., need for outside employment to cover living expenses) that students may face while completing undergraduate research activities into the fall semester.

SECTION 02: AWARD

A. This scholarship will be awarded to 4 (four) UNLV undergraduate students at $2,000 (two-thousand) each. The scholarship funds will be disbursed in each Fall semester.

1. If a student who is receiving scholarship funds is graduating in the first semester of that academic year, they may request to receive the full funds of the scholarship in that one semester, rather than the normal two semester disbursement. The request shall be made to the Scholarships and Grants Committee and if the committee is agreeable, the chair will relay the information to the Business Operations Coordinator who will then make the appropriate arrangements with the Financial Aid Office.

B. Open to all students who meet all of the eligibility requirements found below regardless of citizenship status.

C. Preference will be given to applicants who are Pell grant recipients, first-generation college students, members of ethnic/racial minority groups underrepresented in higher education, and/or current participants in TRIO, Title III AANAPISI, or NSF LSAMP programs.

D. Recipients of the Research Continuation Scholarship must accomplish the following requirements over the scholarship disbursement period:

1. Present their research findings at one of the UNLV Office of Undergraduate Research Symposia events (either in the spring or summer).

Statement from Senator Briones:

My name is Isaac Briones, a senator representing the Division of Health Sciences and a member of the Scholarships & Grants Committee. As a senator who has reviewed all recurring scholarship presentations — including applicant pool sizes, strengths, weaknesses, and other key details — I've had the opportunity to determine, to the best of my knowledge, whether scholarship funding should be reduced or cut.

After reviewing the Research Continuation Scholarship presentations from both this year's and last year's cycles, I have concluded that this scholarship should be cut. My reasoning is based on the significant | decrease in applicants from last year to this year, as well as prior actions that have already reduced the funding for this scholarship. This award is intended for four students at $2,000 each; however, this year there were only three applicants, meaning every applicant that was eligible automatically received the award without competition. In addition, we have recently approved a new research scholarship that reaches a broader student population compared to the Research Continuation Scholarship.
