

Master of Arts - Political Science Program Handbook

Welcome

Mission Statement

The Department of Political Science offers a general Master of Arts degree with concentrations in American Politics (including public policy and public law), Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory. Students can normally expect to complete the program in one-and-a-half to two years. The graduate program in political science is designed to prepare graduate students for doctoral studies, teaching positions at secondary schools and community colleges, or employment by government agencies, research centers, or private industry.

Purpose

The purpose of this handbook is to provide program specific information that is not found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Students are responsible for understanding and following the policies and procedures delineated in this document and the UNLV Graduate Catalog, as well as the NSHE Code, UNLV Bylaws, and the UNLV Student Conduct Code. Questions about policies should be directed to the Graduate College: GradRebel or GradAssociateDean@unlv.edu.

Department Graduate Faculty

A current listing of the graduate faculty can be found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Faculty must hold appropriately approved levels of graduate faculty status to be involved in graduate education at UNLV. For up to date information regarding graduate faculty status in your department, visit the Graduate Faculty status web page.

Program Requirements

Program requirements regarding admission, coursework and culminating experience are found in the graduate catalog.

Degree Requirements (Official degree requirements are listed in the Graduate Catalog)

Students may take courses in American Politics (including public law and public policy), Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory. Completion of the program requires a minimum of 30 credits beyond the BA.

a. Core curriculum (18 credits)

(i) Methods in political science (six credits)

(ii). Proseminars (12 credits): American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory

b. Major Field (six credits not including the pro-seminar): students select one of the four fields as their major field of study

c. Direct readings (six credits): to be taken as students are completing their professional papers

d. Professional paper: development of an original research paper

GPA Requirement

Students must maintain a minimum grade point average of 3.0 for all course work. No course in which a student makes a grade below B will count toward the degree.

Advisor and Advisory Committee Guidelines

Advisory Committee consisting of three faculty members from the department and one faculty representative of the Graduate College (until students have formed their Advisory Committee, the Graduate Coordinator acts as students' temporary advisor). One of the three departmental members serves as chair and, from that point, as the primary advisor. The chair of the Advisory Committee should be a faculty member with appropriately approved chair privileges from the student's major field.

With the Advisory Committee's approval and that of the Graduate Coordinator, students establish a program of study for their remaining credits.

Degree Program Benchmarks

Professional Paper

As students are completing their coursework, they should consult with their faculty advisor and a supervising committee consistency of two additional faculty members from the department and one member from outside the department who serves as the Graduate College Representative, and begin working on their professional paper. The professional paper serves as the culmination of students' training and requires that students develop and execute an original research project addressing a topic of their choosing. The result of the project should be a scholarly investigation of a specific research question of theoretical significance akin to a journal article.

In students' final semesters as they are completing their professional papers, they enroll in six credits of PSC 795. If students plan to defend their professional papers in the summer, they must take three credits of PSC 795 that summer.

Each member of the advisory committee reads the professional paper and may require revisions. In writing the professional paper, the student should follow the Guide to Preparing and Submitting a Thesis or Dissertation (available on the Graduate College's Web site) the department has no formatting or stylistic requirements of its own, but your committee may have such requirements.

Twice a year the Graduate College holds a seminar to explain its requirements for writing a thesis (or professional paper). The department strongly urges you to attend one of those seminars; doing so will likely save you much time in the long run.

The professional paper must be unanimously approved by the committee. After the paper has been approved, an oral defense is held. You are responsible for arranging a date and time at which all members of your committee may attend; you are also responsible for arranging a room with one of our administrative assistants.

The committee may require you to make substantive or stylistic revisions, or both, to your paper even after you have defended it.

When you have successfully defended your paper, made any necessary further revisions, had those revisions approved by your committee, and submitted final copies to the Graduate College, you are required to give the department one copy of your paper, bound in black cover. Please adhere to Graduate College requirements and deadlines for this culminating experience for the degree.

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines

UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog.

The Department of Political Science has high expectations of its students, among which are that you adhere to standards of integrity. You are expected to do all of your work, oral and written, honestly. You should be familiar with the statement on the subject in the Graduate Catalog.

One aspect of integrity is providing adequate citations in your written work. The department does not have one required format for citations, although professors may impose such a requirement in their courses. If the professor does not do so, you should use a method specified in a style book (e.g., Kate L. Turabian's A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations).

Annual Mandatory Individual Development Plan (IDP)

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form [Formerly known as the Student Annual Review]. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead.

Faculty Advisors/Graduate Coordinators have the option to provide feedback to each students' submitted IDP and provide acknowledgement that they have reviewed the IDP.

Reported student data are shared with students' graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students' strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner.

Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track UNLV metrics related to the annual productivity of all students.

Probation and Separation

If a student fails to successfully progress in their degree program, their department/school will recommend that the student be placed on probation by the Graduate College. Please see the Probation and Separation section of the Graduate Catalog for more information.

Examples of failure to successfully progress include but not limited to:

- Receiving an unsatisfactory grade, as defined by the program in which the course is offered, in any graduate course.

- Being sanctioned by the Office of Student Conduct

- Failure to satisfactorily pass required courses or meet program benchmarks (such as passing comprehensive exams or advancing to candidacy) in a timely manner such that progress towards degree is delayed

- Advisory Committee Chairs may also request that their advisee be put on probation if progress on the professional paper has stalled.

Students may be recommended for dismissal/separation from their program with approval from the Graduate college for the following reasons:

- Receiving two unsatisfactory grades, as defined by the program in which the course is offered, in the same semester.

Being sanctioned by the Office of Student Conduct while on probation
Failure to satisfactorily pass required courses or meet program benchmarks (such as passing comprehensive exams or advancing to candidacy) in a timely manner such that progress towards degree is delayed

The Graduate Studies Committee may recommend immediate separation without prior probationary status, for students who receive two unsatisfactory grades in the same semester only with final approval from the Graduate College

Additional Program Information

Graduate Assistantships

The information here supplements that in the Graduate Assistant Handbook (available on the Graduate College's Web site).

The number of assistantships offered by the department may vary from year to year and is subject to budgetary constraints. The number of vacancies varies from semester to semester. Selection of recipients is made by a committee of departmental faculty.

Contracts for graduate assistants (GAs) begin at the beginning of the week before instruction begins in a semester; contracts end at the deadline for submission of final grades by instructors.

Recommendation for renewal of a Graduate Assistantship (GA) is at the discretion of the Department of Political Science (see description of ad hoc committee above) subject to the constraints of University and Graduate College rules.

The following are examples of reasons the Department of Political Science may decide not to recommend renewal of GA funding:

The student has already been employed as a Graduate Assistant for 8 semesters.
Recommendation for funding beyond 8 semesters is possible in extraordinary circumstances at the Department's discretion.

A pattern of unsatisfactory evaluations in their performance as a GA.

A student is sanctioned by the Office of Student Conduct.

Failure to satisfactorily pass required courses or meet program benchmarks (such as passing comprehensive exams or advancing to candidacy) in a timely manner such that progress towards degree is delayed

The student is not in good standing

Assignments held by graduate assistants vary from semester to semester. Assignments are normally made in the week before the contract for the semester begins. Depending upon the faculty member to whom graduate assistants are assigned, they will be either assisting faculty with teaching at the undergraduate level only or research or both. Graduate Assistantships are awarded on a competitive basis and to maintain an assistantship student must remain in good standing (e.g., maintain at least a 3.0 grade point average and make continuous progress toward their degree). Please see the Graduate College Graduate Assistant Handbook for more information.

The MA Graduate Assistantship contracts may be awarded up to a maximum of two years.

Forms and Deadlines

All of the forms listed below are available on the Graduate College's Web site—except part 2 of the Proposed Master's & Specialist Degree Program form, which is available on the UNLV Degrees Directory Web site.

For an up-to-date list of deadlines, see the Graduate College's Web site.
