

Master of Fine Arts in Writing for Dramatic Media Program

Handbook

Welcome

Welcome to Writing for Dramatic Media, the graduate degree within the Department of Film. You are here due to a very select process and the three-year rigor is one of the most challenging of any writing program in the country. This handbook and the Graduate Catalog will provide you with the information to guide you through your time at UNLV, however, they do not serve to replace your interaction with your Graduate Coordinator. Development of great performance writing depends on collaboration and interaction. The same concept applies to the study of great performance writing in that your experience will be maximized with collaboration and interaction with the student cohort and the instructor.

Mission Statement

This terminal film degree focuses specifically on the art and craft of writing for performance across a broad spectrum of media with superior academic and artistic standards for the candidates. They are expected to elevate their talent and craft to professional levels of excellence. Students completing the three-year program will have a significant group of scripts that will range from the traditional feature motion picture screenplay to the variety of performances found in the latest media as the digital world evolves.

Purpose

The purpose of this handbook is to provide program specific information that is not found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Students are responsible for understanding and following the policies and procedures delineated in this document and the UNLV Graduate Catalog, as well as the NSHE Code, UNLV Bylaws, and the UNLV Student Conduct Code. Questions about policies should be directed to the Graduate College: valarie.burke@unlv.edu or GradAssociateDean@unlv.edu.

Department Graduate Faculty

A current listing of the graduate faculty can be found in the UNLV Graduate Catalog. Faculty must hold either associate or full graduate faculty status to be involved in graduate education at UNLV. For up to date information regarding graduate faculty status in your department, visit the Graduate Faculty status web page.

Program Information

This terminal degree focuses specifically on the art and craft of writing for performance. This is a three-year long creative writing discipline housed in a film department. The focus of the program is on developing feature screenplays but the candidate will also produce television screenplays, stage plays, and various types of work for digital media as it evolves. The program is based on a “conservatory” approach of practice and repetition and includes a significant amount of “pitching,” or working aloud, as part of the process. Students completing the three-year program will have a significant group of feature motion picture, television, and other scripts that have been honed to a professional level. In addition to faculty with professional experience, the students are exposed to a variety of professional guests.

Certificate

The Department of Film also offers a certificate program available to students matriculating in any graduate program besides the MFA in Writing for Dramatic Media.

Advisory Committee Guidelines

The advisory committee will be composed of three graduate faculty members from the Department of Film and one “outside” committee member. These members will be chosen by the candidate.

Degree Program Benchmarks

While the candidate may have a variety of writing across the assorted forms of dramatic media, the expectation is that there will be a feature length screenplay as the culminating creative activity.

Typically, the candidate doesn’t determine which script will be benchmark work until the start of the third year in the program.

Program Timeline

All candidates join the program in the fall semester of the first year. The expectation is that they will pass their oral defense and graduate in the spring of their third year.

Professional Code of Ethics/Discipline Guidelines

UNLV Graduate College policy regarding academic integrity can be found in the graduate catalog.

Writing for various media requires a constant state of collaboration and interaction with other artists. Such collegiality will be expected. If there is a significant issue with the collaborative process, it will be address in the Annual Review

Annual Review Procedures

Each winter break and early spring term, graduate students are required to complete the Graduate Student Individual Development Plan (IDP) form. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress, and it establishes reasonable goals for the year ahead. Reported student data is shared with students’ graduate coordinators and advisors to foster opportunities for discussion about students’ strengths and weaknesses, accomplishments and next requirements, and mentoring plans so that students know what they need to do in order to progress successfully through their programs in a timely manner. Students who are graduating are also required to complete the form in order to record their achievements since the data is also used to track metrics related to the annual productivity of all students. This survey will be sent by the Graduate College to the student’s Rebelmail account. The review covers the prior calendar year and assesses student progress while setting goals for the year ahead.

Probation

If a student fails to successfully progress in their degree program, their department/school will recommend that the student be placed on probation by the Graduate College. Students on probation may be dismissed/separated from their program for failing to successfully meet the conditions of their probation by the deadline provided. Please see the Probation and Separation section of the Graduate Catalog for more information
