OVERVIEW

theCoderSchool is an after-school drop-off program for kids learning to code with several Bay Area locations and growing. We are looking for passionate Code Coaches to teach our next generation how to change the world! You will meet incredible kids, teach them how to code, and be rewarded with an amazing experience.

Roles and Responsibilities
A Code Coach is a mentor who teaches kids how to code. At theCoderSchool, your assignment will depend on schedule, ability, and desire. You will teach one-to-one or one-to-few coding lessons for kids. Typically in Scratch/Snap for the younger folks, with Python or Javascript/HTML or Java, C++ and beyond for the advanced kids.

Education and Qualifications
Our college-level Code Coaches will have Comp Sci or Engineering or similar major at a nearby accredited school. Our Veteran Code Coaches will have relevant industry experience.

Preferred Skills
We need a great communicator. There will be plenty of chatting with parents, and of course patience is a virtue when it comes to kids! We need coding skills. Strong grasp of basic procedural programming. General knowledge of other languages is assumed - Javascript, PHP, HTML/CSS, Python, Java are most helpful. Deep technical skills aren't required - we prefer you communicate well and find answers along with students than know everything upfront. Experience teaching kids in any subject is a plus, as is experience with Scratch or Snap.
