Debate team manages good start despite time, money constraints

by Mark Gentile

An 11-year forensics drought has been broken and UNLV is off and debating in fine style. Coached by graduate students Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, the 1983 debate squad came home from its first debate tournament recently bearing prizes.

The squad’s two-man team of James Ohriner and Doug Arone took first place in the novice team competition at the D.L. Miller Invitational Tournament held at California Polytechnic, Pomona, in October. Ohriner and Arone defeated an Arizona State University team 3-0 to win the event.

Ohriner, a senior in Communication Studies, also took first place in novice extemporaneous speaking, third in persuasive speaking and third in the novice individual division. Other students competing for UNLV were Keith Korsz, Alfred Tryferis, Karl Wyncoop, Veronica Moody and Laurie DeMichelle. DeMichelle also helped judge the competitions.

The team did not fare so well at its second outing, the Aztec Invitational at San Diego State University, barely missing getting into a prize category, but Coach Glenn is proud of his neophyte debaters.

In the early national rankings for this season, UNLV was 33rd out of 100, not bad for first timers.

Glenn started the UNLV debate team because, he said, he believes every major university should have a debate team. “It’s one of the best places for experience in public speaking,” he said, “especially for those students going on to law school.”

He said that scholarships are sometimes available for debaters and that “looks good on a resume.”

The purpose of the squad, Glenn said, is to engage students in an examination of a significant social, political or economic issue.

“A debate encourages and develops critical thinking ability, as well as teaches students to have a clear, yet lively and forceful speaking manner,” Glenn said.

Despite the enthusiasm of prospective debaters, getting the program started has not been easy. Glenn has had to cope with two familiar problems: the lack of time and money.

Both coaches are teaching assistants in communication studies. “Between school and jobs, I find myself picking the tournaments on the basis of the number of days away from school,” Glenn said.

Glenn has also had to chase funding. A grant from the academic vice president’s office got the ball rolling and Glenn has developed support through CSUN.

At the moment they work out of the TA’s office in Grant Travel to debates is the major cost. In addition, there are entry fees. Ideally, given the time involved, some remuneration should be available for the coach. At present, Glenn and Reppert are volunteering their time.

Glenn suggested that a graduate assistant assigned to debate could give the program more stability and help ensure its survival.

Meanwhile, Glenn is seeking funding wherever he can find it, as well as volunteers to help with the organizational aspects of the program, which include arrangements for a tournament at UNLV in the spring.

Hall, but hope to have a debate squad office in Humanities when the faculty of the College of Business and Economics moves to Beam Hall.

Several UNLV faculty and departments have given moral support to the program, but have been able to commit little else. Communication Studies, the traditional home of university debate, has declined to get directly involved because of inadequate resources. The department sponsored the debate team in the early 1970s but gave it up because the necessary funding was not available.

 Debate squad takes second at Gov.'s Cup

A strong overall performance boosted the UNLV Debate and Forensics Squad to a second-place team sweepstakes trophy last weekend at the Governor's Cup Speech and Debate Tournament at Sacramento City College.

Special trophies for tournament excellence were awarded to universities bringing fewer than 15 contestants. UNLV won second place by bringing only three people to compete.

Junior Steve Creason and freshman Joe Bunin won third place in novice CEDA debate. It was Bunin's first university debate. Creason and Bunin were also named third and fifth best speakers in their division, respectively. They posted a 7-2 win-loss record in preliminary rounds, and then lost in a semifinal round.

Creason also won fifth place in novice impromptu speaking and sixth place in extemporaneous speaking. Senior Sheryl Chenin took sixth place in dramatic interpretation. The team of Creason and Chenin won fourth place in duo interpretation.

Thirty-nine colleges and universities attended this year's Governor's Cup, which is one of the largest tournaments in the West.

Accompanying team members were UNLV coaches Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, who judged preliminary, semifinal, and final rounds in debate and individual events.

UNLV's next tournament is February 4-5 at Cal Poly Pomona.

Debate team hawking $$$

"Establishing a new beginning..." That's the motto of the UNLV Debate and Forensics Squad, a group not so new to UNLV.

According to Bob Glenn, director of forensics, there was a team about 10 years ago at UNLV. The team was coached by Dr. Larry Kokkeler, who has since left UNLV.

This year Glenn and Jim Reppert, associate director of forensics, started the team up again. And they have had a successful season thus far. Right now the team is ranked 55th in the nation, out of 253 teams. But they've run into the same type of problem many organizations run into: money.

"We want UNLV to become a nationally recognized forensics program, but it's difficult without proper funding," Reppert said.

The team has been competing with a "shoestring budget" of $4,300 this year.

Glenn said that there must be funding for payroll to continue the program. He added that the team must also be able to offer some type of incentive such as scholarships to members of the team, but is unable to do so at the present time.

"We travel to every tournament we go to, and have to pay for lodging, traveling, and entry fees. I'm only able to buy team members one meal per trip, and I think they deserve more," Glenn said.

Glenn said the team represents the academic side of the university, a different side that's not always seen, and has been successful in doing this.

The team has triumphed in seven of the eight tournaments they have participated in.

They recently entered a tournament with three members and wound up bringing home 10 trophies.

The team also has four members who have qualified for national competition in six events.

Sheryl Chenin has qualified for competition in Duo Interpretation, Poetry Interpretation and Dramatic Interpretation; Steve Creason has qualified for Duo Interpretation, Extemporaneous Speaking and Impromptu Speaking; James Ohrinez has qualified for Extemporaneous Speaking, Impromptu Speaking and Persuasive Speaking; and Lance Stringham has qualified for Extemporaneous Speaking.

Glenn said that the team must compete in 10-12 tournaments a year to be nationally recognized and competitive, but again that costs money.

Two UNLV debaters in their first-ever tournament captured the top prize at the California State University, Long Beach Novice Debate Tournament last weekend.

The team of Lance Stringham and Jeannette Merryman won first place in the beginner division. Neither had previously competed in university debate.

Stringham, a sophomore, and Merryman, a freshman, defeated a team from Mount San Antonio Junior College on a 2-1 decision in the final round.

Stringham was also named third best speaker in the beginner division.

Accompanying the winners to the tournament were UNLV coaches Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, who judged preliminary, semifinal and final rounds in the competition.

UNLV's next competition will be January 2-4 at the UCLA National College Forensics Tournament.

Congratulations To A Team With Spirit!

Debaters host tourney of Orwell’s classic, 1984

by Ron Zayas

The George Orwell Invitational Forensics Tournament, the first such event sponsored by the UNLV debate team, allowed top rated universities nationwide to vie for trophies and copies of Orwell's classic, 1984.

The three-day tournament, last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, pitted UNLV against much larger and better funded debate teams. However, UNLV gave a strong overall showing.

While a "host rule" does not allow the host school's team to enter into the finals of their own tournament, some of the performances of individual debaters deserved recognition nevertheless.

Sheryl Chenin, would have placed in the dramatic interpretation and in the poetry interpretation categories had it not been for the host rule.

Louis Clemens also gave a top rated performance in the oratory interpretation category, but received no award by virtue of the fact that UNLV was ineligible.

The University Of California at Berkeley, and Biola University both have top ranked teams that excelled in the tournament. Both teams finished first and second in the sweepstakes category (in which the teams with the most points overall in the tournament are recognized), with Berkeley taking the first place honors.

California State University at Fullerton took third place overall and placed many individual debaters in top positions in most events, including first in the after dinner speaking division.

The Orwell debate was the first chance that UNLV’s debate team had had to be the host of a debate, and it has brought a professional luster to the infant debate team.

Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, organizers of the Tournament and the driving force behind the team's existence, feel that the tournament will give the team and the university a better academic image throughout the academic community.

The importance of the tourney is also monumental when it is considered that UNLV is in the running for the Brady Lee Garrison Newcomers Award, and UNLV's showing in the tournament has increased the team's chances of receiving the award.

While UNLV is presently ranked first among first-year programs in the nation (the criteria on which the award is given), Florida State University is running a close second and will close in if UNLV falters in an upcoming UCLA sponsored debate.

UNLV’s rating overall in the nation (56 in a field of 262 schools) is incredible considering the low participation rate for the team, and the fact that financial restraints have made participation in some tournaments impossible.

"Usually we have four people, two debate teams, and a number of IEs (individual events), yet we still managed to win second place sweepstakes (at the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensics Association Spring Championship)," said Reppert. He also adds that schools like UNR will have as many as 40-50 persons in their team.

The tournament, which was both complicated to arrange and expensive to produce, received funds from the competing schools. Fees ranged from $40 for an event that requires a UNLV judge to $4 for entering an individual in an event.

The Orwell Tournament is the only UNLV sponsored event on the forensic calendar, yet the successful outcome of the tournament (both to the schools that participated and to the image of UNLV) will inevitably lead to other tournaments hosted by the debate team in future years.
The UNLV Debate and Forensics Squad has increased its lead as the top-ranked first-year program in the nation as a result of its performance last weekend at the Spider Invitational at the University of Richmond (Va.).

First and third place finishes at Richmond boosted UNLV's point total in CEDA (Cross-Examination Debate Association) debate to 79, ahead of second place Florida State University (65) and third place North Dakota State University (48). Overall, UNLV is ranked 37th in the nation among 273 colleges and universities competing in CEDA this year.

If UNLV hangs on to the top spot, it will win the Brady Lee Garrison Newcomers Award, given yearly to the first-year debate program accumulating the most CEDA points. The award will be presented this weekend at the University of Nevada-Reno.

The team of sophomore Lance Stringham and freshman Lewis Clemmens won first place in novice CEDA debate at Richmond. They posted a 7-1 win-loss record in preliminary rounds, won their semifinal round against the University of Richmond, and then won the final round on a 2-1 decision against Morehouse College (Atlanta).

Junior Steve Creason and freshman Joe Bunin took third place in novice CEDA. They posted a 7-1 win-loss record in preliminary rounds, and then lost in a semifinal round.

UNLV won four of the top 10 speaker awards in novice division. Bunin, Stringham, Creason and Clemmens were named second, fourth, sixth and ninth best speakers in their division, respectively.
UNLV also received a fifth place sweepstakes trophy, finishing behind such established debate programs as UCLA and Southern Illinois University.

Accompanying team members to Richmond were UNLV coaches Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, who judged preliminary, octafinal, quarterfinal and semifinal rounds in debate.

Reppert was named runner-up at the awards assembly as the outstanding judge of the tournament.

UNLV's next competition takes place this weekend at the Great Western Debate Tour at the University of Nevada-Reno.
The UNLV Debate and Forensics Squad is a national champion in its first year of existence.

It received the Brady Lee Garrison Newsmakers Award for being the top-ranked first-year CEDA (Cross-Examination Debate Association) debate program in the nation last weekend at the Great Western Debate Tour at the University of Nevada-Reno.

Accepting the award were UNLV coaches Robert Glenn and Jim Reppert, both teaching assistants in the Department of Communication Studies.

Previous winners of the Garrison Newsmakers Award were Southern Illinois University in 1981, Loyola University of Chicago in 1982, and Southwest Missouri State University in 1983.

UNLV finished the 1983-84 season with 79 CEDA points, ahead of second place Florida State University (65) and third place North Dakota State University (55). Overall, UNLV placed 37th among 273 colleges and universities competing in CEDA debate this year.

The UNLV team posted a combined 99-55 win-loss record in debates participated in this year, for a 64 percent winning rank.

In individual events competition at the UBR tournament, freshman Keith Koros took fourth place in argument analysis.

The Garrison Newsmakers Award topped the list of achievements for the squad, which came into existence last fall after being disbanded 11 years ago due to time and money constraints.

The money constraints were still apparent this year, as Reppert and Glenn received no salaries for their coaching services. Funding for travel and entry fees came from the university administration, GSUS, and the office of Dr. John Umue, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

UNLV won 72 awards at the 12 tournaments it participated in this year in debate and individual events.

Highlights of the season included first place debate awards at Cal Poly Pomona, Cal State Long Beach and the University of Richmond (Va.), and seven first place awards in individual events during the year.

Other highlights were second place sweepstakes awards at the Pacific Southwest Collegiate Forensics Association Spring Championships and the Governor's Cup at Sacramento City College, and second and third place finishes in debate at UCLA.

Priorities for next year include scholarship funding for forensics, a larger budget for travel and entry fees, salaries for the debate coaches, and a continuation of the success the squad had this year in debate and individual events.

Tentative plans have been made for UNLV to compete at one final tournament this year, the PSCFA "Cool Off" Championships, to be held at Rio Hondo College in Whittier, California on May 12 and 13.

Those interested in joining the squad or contributing to it financially for next year should call the UNLV Forensics Office at 739-3455.

UNLV’s debate team’s No. 1

By Carol Cling
Review-Journal

Whatever the fate of UNLV’s much ballyhooed basketball team, there’s one squad on campus with a clear shot at a national championship. They score points, not on the playing field or gymnasium floor, but on the stage and in the classroom.

UNLV’s debate and forensics team has done it on a shoestring budget. With no home-court advantage.

The school’s previous forensics program died about 10 years ago.

But teaching assistant Bob Glenn resurrected it during the current school year — in part, to earn wider recognition for UNLV.

As an undergraduate of the University of Southern California during its domination of collegiate debate, Glenn was impressed by the national recognition the university received for being the No. 1 debate and forensics program in the nation. It represents the academic side of the university. As a teaching assistant at UNLV now earning his master’s degree, Glenn acknowledges “from the outside, there’s not enough emphasis on academic pursuits."

The UNLV forensics program, however, could signal a change.

“Anytime you go from no program to all at the No. 1 program in the nation, it impresses people,” Glenn said. “If they’re not impressed, they don’t deserve to be.”

Locked in a tense battle with Florida State University for the Gart on Newcomers Trophy, UNLV’s much ballyhooed Runnin’ Rebels remain first in the national standings.

The Florida team recently traveled to a Nebraska tournament in an attempt to earn more points and move in front of UNLV in the standings. "But we’re still No. 1," Glenn noted after receiving the latest rankings. The Florida team, however, “shows how serious they are” about winning the championship, Glenn said.

The UNLV team now is “trying desperately” to obtain $2,000 to finance a trip to the national tournament coming up in Richmond, Virginia, Glenn said.

The Richmond tournament would give them even more points going into the national finals next month. That competition, the Great Western Tournament at the University of Nevada-Reno, "is like the NCAA for the basketball team," said Jim Leppert, UNLV’s associate director of forensics.

Winning the championship "would be a real feather in our cap," Leppert added. "It’s something positive in an academic function."

Glenn and Leppert maintain a winning attitude despite the pressure, as evidenced by Bob’s Blurb, a newsletter that serves as a team headquarters.

"Let’s get going! Kick the stuffing out of them at UCLA," the board exhorts, its message left over from before the squad’s most recent tournament, where UNLV teams finished second and third. “On to Richmond!” the final memo reads.

If the team manages to get to the Richmond tournament, Glenn and Leppert will be looking for performances to match the season’s best.

Junior Steve Creason, for example, captured three first places in individual events at a recent tournament in an academic function to illustrate their compensation. Sheryl Chenin and freshman Joe Bunin for interpretation and debate. Senior James Ohriner and sophomore Lance Stringham also have captured a number of individual awards.

But finishing out the season, no matter what the final standings, will more than exhaust the team’s $4,300 budget.

The squad even staged its own tournament this month — the George Orwell Invitational, which attracted teams from as far away as Kansas — to raise money for the program.

By contrast, UNR’s forensics budget is $250,000.

He and Leppert, also a teaching assistant, coach in what he describes as "the Mother Teresa tradition."

Leppert takes a more graphic approach to illustrate their compensation. Sheryl Chenin and foregrounds the thumb and forefinger to form a zero.

"It takes a lot of hours, a lot of time, but the students make it all worth it," Glenn said. "If the students don’t care, the coaches aren’t going to care. But the students have worked very, very hard. We get absolutely no recognition on campus and the debaters work as hard or harder than the basketball team."

The debaters also compete in individual events, ranging from impromptu, extemporaneous and persuasive speaking to poetry interpretation and communication analysis.

Dear Supporters and Friends of the UNLV Debate Squad,

We of the UNLV Debate and Forensics Team have put forth our efforts to enhance the academic reputation of the University. These efforts have not been without their rewards, both in the way of awards and accumulated knowledge.

In our two short years of existence we have attained many goals. These goals could not have been possible without the support of the administrators.

This program is a collection of the individual and debate team awards for the 1984-85 season. The team members worked very hard for this recognition and they achieved!

We appreciate your continued support.

EVERYTHING FOR THE WELDER
If you're working hard to make a decent GPA, you shouldn't have to work as hard to make ends meet.

A federally backed student loan from First Interstate Bank of Nevada can make things a lot easier.

We can arrange to loan you up to $2,500 a year for your undergraduate studies. And up to $5,000 for graduate studies. All loans are at very low interest rates.

While you're in school, the federal government will pay the interest on your loan. Once you graduate, you'll have up to ten years to repay your loan.

So stop in at any First Interstate Bank office for the full story and an application.

There's only one Nevada bank that grants student loans. First Interstate Bank. And last year, more than 4,500 students received federally backed student loans from us.

The way we see it, while you're in college, your checkbook should be the last book you should have to sweat over.

Live the life you want. Nevada!

Dear Jim:

Just a note to thank you very much for talking with me this morning about the debate team -- the entire forensics team, in fact. It brought back a lot of fond memories of my days in extemp and dramatic interp as a member of my high school speech team.

Enclosed please find the stories you lent me about the team. I'm sure they'll come in handy as I write the story. (I copied them first thing so the originals wouldn't be subjected to the incredible amount of dirt, ink, etc., the newsroom generates.)

I've also assigned a photographer for 8 p.m. Thursday as we discussed -- but you'll have met him before you receive this, no doubt!

Thanks again for your help -- and good luck in Reno. Please give me a call if there's anything I can do to help in future.

Sincerely,

Carol Cling
