College Level(s): All Levels

OVERVIEW

BananaDog Media is an award winning creative agency located in Las Vegas and is looking for a web designer who can also develop their design into a live WordPress site. They’ve been doing this work for over 12 years now and have developed a certain amount of mastery in terms of being able to provide high level value for clients. Their business is growing and they need someone with a strong design sense as well as the ability to put together a WordPress site from start to finish.

What we are offering:

- The ability to make good money in a relatively low stress environment. You'll need to be able to meet with me regularly, but will also have the freedom to work wherever you like once project guidelines are established.
- An internship to start. Depending on your abilities, this has the ability to become as much work as you want. Work will initially be arriving sporadically until they find that you are dependable and can start scheduling more work.
- A place to grow – you will learn how to successfully produce work that puts you in demand.

What we need from you:

- Punctuality. You'll find that they can be very flexible in terms of your time, but once you’ve agreed on a time to meet and get something done, they expect you to be on time. Their time is valuable.
- Honesty & integrity. Without these you won't last and will be wasting your time and theirs.
- Inspiration. If you don't feel inspired in what you do, then you and they won't click.
- Excellence. Hopefully you are inspired to excellence in the work that you do and take pride in the finished product. They design philosophy is “every pixel counts” so an eye for detail is a must!

If you have coding abilities, and can for example develop custom WordPress functionality using PHP, Javascript, and other coding languages, then they’ll have even more work for you.
