What is the Ombuds Office?

Headed by UNLV Ombuds David G. Schwartz, the Ombuds Office offers an independent, neutral, informal, and confidential space for discussing any issues that are hindering your happiness and effectiveness at UNLV. The office is open to all UNLV employees, including classified staff, academic and administrative faculty, LOAs, part-time instructors, and student employees.

What does the Ombuds do?

1. Listen
   If you are experiencing issues, you can speak with us. All conversations with the Ombuds are confidential.

2. Educate
   We discuss your rights and responsibilities, options for redress, and how to better resolve conflicts, individually and in groups.

3. Mediate
   We provide a place for neutral, informal, and confidential mediation services.

4. Advocate for Change
   We take part in campus assessment efforts and share information about systemic areas of concern to campus leadership.
