Success and satisfaction in a research field requires learning research and professional development skills, as well as integration into a culture of research. Studies show early involvement in skills training and intellectual socialization is critical for all students, and especially for underrepresented students.

The OUR Summer Research Skills Academy welcomes incoming and early career undergraduates to premier research training opportunities at UNLV. Initiated in 2017, this two-day immersive and inclusive program provides a comprehensive introduction to STEM and interdisciplinary research, opportunities to interact with faculty, graduate, and undergraduate scholars, basics of professional career stage training, and individual career coaching sessions.
